CRITES WANTS DELAY IN SUIT FOR DAMAGES

Attorneys Can't be Ready For July 6 Trial, Application Says
TAKES DEPOSITIONS
Hear Application Next Week

Application for postponement of the hearing of the case of H. M. Crites against the Standard Oil Co., in which the plaintiff asks $25,000 damages, was made in common pleas court Saturday by C. A. Leist of this city and T. J. Abernathy of Columbus, attorneys for Mr. Crites, on grounds that they could not prepare to be in the case on July 6, the original date set for the hearing.

The attorneys for Mr. Crites made this announcement Friday afternoon, following deposition proceedings which were taken in the court room. Mr. Crites was questioned by Standard Oil attorneys for 90 minutes.

DISCUSSES 'BREAK'
While on the stand Mr. Crites disclosed the reason for the alleged "break" between he and the Standard Oil Co. He stated that in a contract he signed in June 1929, he was to be furnished gas one-half cent below the tank-car price, or in other words was to buy the gas three and one-half cents below the posted price at the Standard Oil stations. He alleges that the oil company broke its contract when it began furnishing tenants on his farms and other friendly farmers its gasoline at the same price at which he was disposing of it at his station, and in this way he claims he lost nearly all of his station trade.

The Standard Co. contends that there is no phrase in its contract with Mr. Crites which prohibits them from furnishing farmers its gasoline at the posted station price. Attorneys for the oil company further stated that other filling station operators must contend with the same competition.

Mr. Crites also stated that he did not go into the authorized agent agreement voluntarily and that he was not satisfied and had to accept the only terms offered by the Standard Co., to which the Standard Oil attorneys replied, "There were plenty of other oil companies which were willing to furnish you gas, weren't there Mr. Crites?"

If the hearing for postponement is overruled the case will begin in common pleas court a week from Monday, July 6.

The hearing on the application will probably be heard next week. Richard Simkins of the firm of Bernethy and Simkins is assisting Standard Oil attorneys in the case.

'CIRCLERS' ARE OVER HALF OF WORLD FLIGHT

Post and Gatty Speed Over Barren Siberia in Dash
for Sea

THE TASK Siberia, June 27.—With more than one-half of their record-breaking journey around the globe behind them, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, America's "Time-Table Airman," sped eastward over the dreary Siberian wastes today toward Khabarovsk, last scheduled stop before they return to the continent of North America.

The fliers took off from Irkutsk at 7:10 a. m. G. M. T. (2:10 a. m. eastern Standard Time), only two hours and fifteen minutes after reaching here from Moscow by way of Novo-Sibirsk.

Upon reaching Irkutsk at 4:55 a. m. G. M. T. (11:55 a. m. E. S. T.) covering the 1,037 miles from Non-Sibirsk in six hours and ten minutes. They hoped to negotiate the 1100 miles to Khabarovsk in nine hours of flying.

AVERAGE 150 PER
Never in history have the rugged steppes, desolate plains and forests of Siberia been crossed with such speed. They flashed along the route of the Trans-Siberia railway at a pace of almost 150 miles per hour, more than twice that averaged by the Graf Zeppelin on its historic crossing of Siberia.

If the present rate of speed is maintained, the armen will easily negotiate their entire 15,000 mile journey in the ten days they allotted for the flight. This is even a distinct possibility they will achieve their reported desire to land their plane back at Roosevelt field, New York after having circum-navigated the globe in one single week.

Despite considerable bad weather, the hazards of flying over more or less uncharted territory and an almost complete absence of up-to-date aeronautical facilities over much of Siberia, Post and Gatty have maintained an average speed since their take-off from New York on Tuesday of 141 miles an hour.

A north-west cross wind along the route from Moscow to Novo-Sibirsk and strong headwinds in the vicinity of Omsk failed to cut down the armen's average speed, and they set a new record of 11 and one-half hours for that flight of more than 1,400 miles.

From Khabarovsk, the fliers face 2,450 miles of flying over a northeasterly course along the Pacific coast of Asia to Nome, Alaska. This leg of the flight will involve considerable over-water flying. The armen planned to span the sea of Okhotsk to Petropavlovsk, Kanchatka, then veering over the Bering sea to Alaska.

800 "Just Kids" Attend Safety Club Party

A treat such as has never before been afforded Circleville and vicinity children was dished out at the Grand Theatre Saturday when more than 800 members of The Herald's Just Kids Safety club were guests of Walker Baughman, proprietor of the theatre, of Frank A. Lynch, of the Circleville Cocoa Cola Bottling Co., and of The Herald.

Every available seat, there are 750 of them, and every step where a child might sit was filled long before the picture was flashed on the screen. The doors of the theatre were opened at 9 o'clock and even before this time kiddies were lined up in front of the theatre. When the doors opened there was a grand rush for seats and in less than an hour every seat was occupied.

It wasn't an unruly crowd of children, who filled the Grand theatre, but it was a group of young Americans that was just "licked pink" to be permitted to enjoy a party such as this.

All enjoyed the picture show and when the show was completed, they were again treated when Frank Lynch handed each a treat of Farnas Ice cream. It would have been a treat for many of the older residents of Circleville to have seen the expression on the faces of some of these children when they received their allotment of ice cream. The children, some of whom have probably not had ice cream all summer, were certainly a happy group.

The Just Kids Safety club was begun several weeks ago by The Herald with the view of promoting the idea of safety among the children during the summer months. The motto of the club is "look up and down before crossing the street."

In the early stages of the club the response was very gratifying, but from the time it was announced a picture show followed by ice cream would be given the children, the business office of The Herald has been fairly swamped with children, not only from Circleville proper but from the surrounding communities.

MERCURY GOES TO 110

Wheat Belt Hit by Lack of Rainfall

In a big oven from the Rocky Mountains on the west to the Appalachians on the east, the middle west gasped today in the heat which baked millions for the fifth day.

No immediate relief was in sight and "turn on the heat" was the gist of weather predictions. C. A. Donnell, chief forecaster at Chicago, said:

"Saturday will see a temperature of at least 95 and probably 98. Humidity will remain high, increasing discomfort."

MERCURY AT 95

Although a windspr which tossed papers and trash through city streets caused the temperature to fall for a short time, Friday's high mark was 98 degrees, according to Dr. H. R. Clarke, weather observer. The windstorm which brought visions of a cyclone or severe storm lasted for only a minute, but when it subsided the mercury had dropped several degrees.

A cool breeze was prevalent, through the end of the afternoon, but with 87 degrees being the lowest mark reached during Friday night, Saturday again forebode a "scorching."

The 98-degree mark, the highest of the year, was reached at 2 p. m. just before the windstorm which was only the tail-end of a severe storm which swept northern Ohio.

temperatures. Northern Ohio, swept by a 60-mile an hour gale along the lake shore from Toledo to Cleveland, reported six dead, scores injured, and considerable property damage.

Detroit also suffered a wind and electrical storm. Record temperatures were reported from a wide area. In Chicago when the mercury rose to 94.5 late yesterday afternoon it set an all-time record for that date. Half a million thronged to the beaches seeking a cool place as eight prostrations were recorded.

High readings reported to the weather bureau included: 110 at Phoenix, Ariz., 108 at Mitchell, S. D., 106 at Red Wing, Minn., Neodosha, Kan., and Waterloo, Ia., 104 at Huron, S. D., Galesburg, Pa., and Sterling, Ill., 103 at Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Canton, Ill., 102 at Carbondale, Ill., Miles City, Mont., Davenport, and Dubuque, Ia., and Red Bluff, Cal., and 101 degrees at St. Paul, Minn., and Eau Claire, Wis.

An even dozen cities reported maximum temperatures of an even 100 degrees. Among them were Evansville, Ind., Peoria, Ill., Oklahama City, and St. Louis, Mo.

Temperatures on the street where the sun's rays blazed down out of a cloudless sky get in their full effect ranged from 20 to 30 degrees higher than official readings.

Advises were that small grains in the wheat belt were being dried before maturity but no estimate of the damage was made. In the corn belt, rain was needed in some areas but generally the crop was in good condition. Some farmers were doing their wheat harvesting by moonlight.

Some cities reported a shortage of water and Chicago's engineering department kept its full force working 24 hours to supply outlying towns. Panama, Ill., restricted use of water for sprinkling purposes but Jacksonville, Ill., allowed unlimited bathing for the first time in five months.

In 'War' Here.

The gasoline war appeared to be raging Saturday with another filling station operator dropping the price of gas sold at his station to 13c to compete with the same price offered by H. M. Crites, filling station operator, on S. Court-st.

The Helvering & Scharenberg station, E. Main-st., at the Lancaster-pk., distributing Cities Service products, announced its drop late Friday afternoon.

Other oil companies throughout the county were maintaining a price of 14 cents for low test and 17 cents for high test, Saturday.

Leist Tire Shop, E. Main-st., another distributor of Cities Service products, announced a drop in gasoline to 13 cents Saturday.

The "war" is expected to bring the price of gas down to 10 cents before the smoke of battle has cleared away.

LOCAL COURT NEWS

SUIT FOR $33,816

The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Milwaukee, filed action for money and asked the foreclosure of a mortgage in common pleas court Saturday against Benjamin F. Yates and Elizabeth J. Yates, his wife, The Third National Bank, Newton Collett, William A. Sells and Tabitha Y. Hunsicker.

The suit concerns a promissory note for $45,000 which Tabitha Y. Hunsicker delivered to the plaintiff on March 8, 1920. At the same time she gave a mortgage for 558 acres of land in Deer Creek-twp. The plaintiff charges that on March 9, 1925 Mrs. Hunsicker executed and delivered one of the farms to Benj. F. Yates.

The plaintiff also claims that only $12,000 has been paid on the note and now there is still due $33,816.84, which consists of principal and interest.

The Third National Bank, Newton Collett, and William A. Sells are made party defendants in the suit through their relations with the other defendants.

Charles H. May is attorney for the plaintiff.

DEBT PLAN IS COMPLICATED

French Parliament Approves Laval's Stand; Stimson Boards Ship.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The French parliament's approval of "half a Moratorium" for Germany for one year has complicated rather than simplified the difficult task of adjusting the French and American viewpoint on President Hoover's proposal according to the way Washington looked at it today.

While it is true that the chamber vote of confidence in the Laval government has provided the foundation for negotiations it was pointed out that in so doing the chamber placed a severe limitation upon Premier Laval's authority in going the full way to meet President Hoover.

The resolution which the French chamber adopted this morning after a stormy all night session declared the chamber "counts upon it (the government) to assure intangibility of the unconditional annuity," due from Germany.

In other words the chamber looks to the Laval government not to yield on the proposition of making Germany raise and deposit in the international settlement's bank approximately $110,000,000 due under the unconditional provision of the Young plan.

This is the very point in the French note which the administration regards as unacceptable and as vitiating the whole proposition.

Secretary of State Stimson virtually described it in that fashion before leaving here to sail for Europe. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has been instructed to say the same thing to Premier Laval in his conference in Paris today.

SKIPPER KILLED IN BOAT BLAST

CHICAGO, June 27.—Staying on the cabin cruiser, Aloha, and trying to save it rather than joining three passengers on a life raft, Frank Matson, 32, skipper of the boat today lost his life when the boat exploded in Lake Michigan.

The passengers, who were inspecting the boat to buy it, were saved by canoeists.

GERMANS ACCEPT FRANCE'S OFFER

BERLIN, June 27.—Germany will accept the compromise offer made by France in reply to President Hoover's war debt suspension proposal, International News Service learned from a high authoritative source here today.

Contrary to expectations, the reservations imposed by France, involving continued deposit in the bank for international settlements of German's unconditional reparations, have not served to discourage Germany nor to dim the enthusiasm resulting from Mr. Hoover's original proposal.

TWO MOVEMENTS ARE REPORTED ON FOOT IN EFFORT TO CHANGE DRY LAW OF STATE

COLUMBUS, O., June 27.—The prohibition question may stimulate considerable state-wide interest in the November elections this year, despite the fact that this is an off-year politically in the Buckeye state.

Two separate movements are on foot looking toward the possible elimination at the polls this fall of the dry amendment to the state constitution.

Senator Joseph Ackerman, (R.), of Cleveland, is directing the activities of one group of citizens that is circulating petitions upon which voters opposing prohibition are attaching their signatures. Another set of petitions, sponsored by the National Liberty League, with headquarters in Dayton, is being circulated with the view to amending the constitution so as to permit the manufacture, sale and possession of liquor.

To insure submission of which a proposal at the November election, at least 200,000 valid signatures of Ohio voters must be filed at the office of Secretary of State.

Clarence J. Brown not later than 60 days prior to November 3—election day.

Additional interest in the November election will be found in the campaign which will be waged this summer and fall in support of the proposal adopted by the state legislature that the Buckeye state voters provide for the issuance of $7,500,000 in bonds for the purpose of financing the state welfare department's institutional building program.

Possibility that two other proposed amendments to the state constitution may be submitted to the electors next fall also loomed today.

These proposals presented by Attorney Charles Hubbell, (D.), of Cleveland, are pending in the office of the secretary of state. Hubbell was an unsuccessful candidate for state supreme judge last year.

One of Hubbell's proposals is that the constitution provides four-year terms for governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, attorney general, state treasurer, state auditor and four-and-six-year terms for various county officers, as well as to permit judges of the various courts, from the supreme court down, to retain office until they are 70 years of age, or otherwise disqualified.

The other proposal by Hubbell is to amend the constitutional provisions relative to the initiative and referendum so to provide that when proposed constitutional amendments are submitted to the voters, the proposed amendment and the one to be repealed shall be voted upon separately, that person that have been political nominees may submit proposed changes in the constitution without having to file the customary number of signatures of voters, and that, when a newly-adopted amendment is not consistent with some other provision of the constitution, the courts shall construe it to be effective the one adopted at the later date and which received the greatest number of affirmative votes.

WHITE'S PLEA CUTS BUDGET 19 MILLIONS

Money Bill Calls For 119 Millions, Cooper's Asked 139 Millions

COLUMBUS, June 27.—Instead of spending $139,082,506 for all purposes of state government in the 1931-32 biennium, as proposed in the budget recommended by Myers Y. Cooper, former governor, the administration of Governor George White will pay out not more than $119,760,000. Admonished by Governor White that economy is imperative, the general assembly whittled the budget prepared by the outgoing governor last December, as required by law, until a reduction of $19,322,506 had been made in the expenditures proposed by the preceding administration.

MESSAGE WARNING

Governor White had warned in a message to the legislature: "It is for the general assembly to decide to what extent state services shall be curtailed or abolished. There is nothing for the administrative departments to do but cut the garment to the cloth. . . . You will recall the deficit in the state treasury which the present administration inherited from the previous administration. . . . The present fiscal biennium was entered into with a cash deficit of approximately $4,000,000 and a bookkeeping deficit of approximately $9,000,000. . . . Let me caution you against making appropriations in excess of income which may reasonably be expected. Appropriations beyond income are nearly always the precursors of deficits."

Thus advised that he would veto any extravagant allowances, that economy meant economy, the legislature set to work to heed Governor White's demands.

It scanned the $79,992,198 general revenue fund appropriations for the biennium approved by the former administration. It read the words of former Governor Cooper: "These recommendations represent my best judgment as to the financial needs of the executive departments and administrative agencies of the state." And it sliced the $79,992,198 to $65,160,000 in an effort to conform to the ideas of Governor White. So it effected a reduction of $14,832,198 in general revenue fund expenses for which taxpayers provide the money.

The general revenue fund pays for the operation of state departments, institutions and universities. The remaining $54,700,000 of the total two-year appropriation of $119,760,000 must be used for construction and maintenance of highways and for various special governmental activities financed by special taxes.

TO STUDY BILL

Whether the legislators in attempting to cut the garment to the cloth have done a satisfactory job will be determined after scrutiny of the appropriation bill in Governor White's office. If it is found in such analysis that money can be saved here and there on items authorized by the assembly these items will be stricken out of the bill by the Governor before he signs it.

CHICAGO, June 27.—The "rural division" of Al Capone's liquor syndicate which specialized in manufacturing alcohol and supplying it to four states was practically a wreck today, ruined by the indictments returned yesterday by the federal grand jury.

The second big liquor conspiracy indictment returned within a month, this one contained charges of 10,000,000 separate offenses netting $10,000,000 in returns to the 59 individuals and two corporations involved.

The ring was said to have operated from Aurora, Ill., and to have manufactured 190-proof alcohol which was transported on "greased" highways to Iowa, South Dakota, and Minnesota. Fast cars equipped with radios to pick up police messages made the frequent trips. Shipments totaled 5,000 gallons a month to Clinton, Ia., according to officials, and 3,000 a month to Waterloo, Ia. They explained these quantities by saying that in Iowa and adjoining states there is little alcoholic brewed beer and the alcohol that crossed the Mississippi was used to spike bottled near-beer.

And the theatre party is not the last thing on the schedule for the members of this club. Kiddies should be on the lookout at all times for later announcements dealing with the activity of this live organization.

MERCURY GOES TO 110 Wheat Belt Hit by Lack of Rainfall

In a big oven from the Rocky Mountains on the west to the Appalachians on the east, the middle west gasped today in the heat which baked millions for the fifth day.

No immediate relief was in sight and "turn on the heat" was the gist of weather predictions. C. A. Donnell, chief forecaster at Chicago, said:

"Saturday will see a temperature of at least 95 and probably 98. Humidity will remain high, increasing discomfort."

MERCURY AT 98

Although a winds'orn which tossed papers and trash through city streets caused the temperature to fall for a short time, Friday's high mark was 98 degrees, according to Dr. H. R. Clarke, weather observer. The windstorm which brought visions of a cyclone or severe storm lasted for only a minute, but when it subsided the mercury had dropped several degrees.

A cool breeze was prevalent through the rest of the afternoon but with 67 degrees being the lowest mark reached during Friday night, Saturday again forebode a 'scorching.'

The 98-degree mark, the highest of the year, was reached at 2 p. m. just before the windstorm which was only the tail-end of a severe storm which swept northern Ohio.

temperatures. Northern Ohio, swept by a 60-mile an hour gale along the lake shore from Toledo to Cleveland, reported six dead, scores injured, and considerable property damage.

Detroit also suffered a wind and electrical storm. Record temperatures were reported from a wide area. In Chicago when the mercury rose to 94.5 late yesterday afternoon it set an all-time record for that date. Half a million thronged to the beaches seeking a cool place as eight prostrations were recorded.

High readings reported to the weather bureau included: 110 at Phoenix, Ariz., 108 at Mitchell, S. D., 106 at Red Wing, Minn., Neodesha, Kan., and Waterloo, Ia., 104 at Huron, S. D., Galesburg, Pa., and Sterling, Ill., 103 at Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Canton, Ill., 102 at Carbondale, Ill., Miles City, Mont., Davenport, and Dubuque, Ia., and Red Bluff, Cal., and 101 degrees at St. Paul, Minn., and Eau Claire, Wis.

An even dozen cities reported maximum temperatures of an even 100 degrees. Among them were Evansville, Ind., Peoria, Ill., Oklahoma City, and St. Louis, Mo.

Temperatures on the street where the sun's rays blazed down out of a cloudless sky get in their full effect ranged from 20 to 30 degrees higher than official readings.

Advices were that small grains in the wheat belt were being dried before maturity but no estimate of the damage was made. In the corn belt, rain was needed in some areas but generally the crop was in good condition. Some farmers were doing their wheat harvesting by moonlight.

Some cities reported a shortage of water and Chicago's engineering department kept its full force working 24 hours to supply outlying towns. Pana, Ill., restricted use of water for sprinkling purposes but Jacksonville, Ill., allowed unlimited bathing for the first time in five months.

POWELL IS WED

"GAS" PRICE DOWN TO 13

Helvering-Scharenberg Follow
Crites To Lowest Figure
In 'War' Here.

The gasoline war appeared to be raging Saturday with another filling station operator dropping the price of gas sold at his station to 13c to compete with the same price offered by H. M. Crites, filling station operator on S. Court-st.

The Helvering & Scharenberg station, E. Main-st., at the Lancaster-pk. distributing Cities Service products, announced its drop late Friday afternoon.

Other oil companies throughout the county were maintaining a price of 14 cents for low test and 17 cents for high test gas Saturday.

Leist Tire Shop, E. Main-st., another distributor of Cities Service products, announced a drop in gasoline to 13 cents Saturday.

The 'war' is expected to bring the price of gas down to 10 cents before the smoke of battle has cleared away.

GERMANS ACCEPT FRANCE'S OFFER

BERLIN, June 27.—Germany will accept the compromise offer made by France in reply to President Hoover's war debt suspension proposal, International News Service learned from a high authoritative source here today.

Contrary to expectations, the reservations imposed by France, involving continued deposit in the bank for international settlements of German's unconditional reparations, have not served to discourage Germany nor to dim the enthusiasm resulting from Mr. Hoover's original proposal.

SUIT FOR $33,816
The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Milwaukee, filed action for money and asked the foreclosure of a mortgage in common pleas court Saturday against Benjamin F. Yates and Elizabeth J. Yates, his wife, The Third National Bank, Newton Collett, William A. Sells and Tabitha Y. Hunsicker.

The suit concerns a promissory note for $45,000 which Tabitha Y. Hunsicker delivered to the plaintiff on March 8, 1920. At the same time she gave a mortgage for 558 acres of land in Deer Creek-twp. The plaintiff charges that on March 9, 1925 Mrs. Hunsicker executed and delivered one of the farms to Benj. F. Yates.

The plaintiff also claims that only $12,000 has been paid on the note and now there is still due $33,816.84, which consists of principal and interest.

The Third National Bank, Newton Collett, and William A. Sells are made party defendants in the suit through their relations with the other defendants.

Charles H. May is attorney for the plaintiff.

SUITS SETTLED

The three suits brought in common pleas court by Jennie T. Stump of Derby against Mary Mogan, The Franklin Loan and Savings Co., and the Buckeye Building and Loan Co., of Columbus, which totaled $30,000, have been settled and dismissed.

Charles Dresbach and Abernethy and Simkins were attorneys for the plaintiff and C. A. Leist and M. C. Seyfert for the defendants.

MCNEAL IS FINED
Scott McNeal, colored, E. Main-st., paid a fine of $5 to Mayor B. T. Hedges Saturday following his plea of guilty to a charge of intoxication. He was arrested by Officers Fitzpatrick and McManamy in the southeast Friday evening.

The cost were suspended by Mayor Hedges.

BAUM ESTATE

The estate of the late Joseph A. Baum of Harrison-twp is valued at $17,425.84 in an inventory and appraisal returned to probate court Friday.

C. B. Teegardin, Ira Fisher and C. E. Cromley were appraisers.

DEBT PLAN IS COMPLICATED

French Parliament Approves
Laval's Stand; Stimson Boards Ship.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The French parliament's approval of "half a Moratorium" for Germany for one year has complicated rather than simplified the difficult task of adjusting the French and American viewpoint on President Hoover's proposal according to the way Washington looked at it today.

While it is true that the chamber vote of confidence in the Laval government has provided the foundation for negotiations it was pointed out that in so doing the chamber placed a severe limitation upon Premier Laval's authority in going the full way to meet President Hoover.

The resolution which the French chamber adopted this morning after a stormy all night session declared the chamber—"counts upon it (the government) to assure intangibility of the unconditional annuity," due from Germany.

In other words the chamber looks to the Laval government not to yield on the proposition of making Germany raise and deposit in the international settlement's bank approximately $110,000,000 due under the unconditional provision of the Young plan.

This is the very point in the French note which the administration regards as unacceptable and as vitiating the whole proposition. Secretary of State Stimson virtually described it in that fashion before leaving here to sail for Europe. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has been instructed to say the same thing to Premier Laval in his conference in Paris today.

SKIPPER KILLED IN BOAT BLAST

CHICAGO, June 27.—Staying on the cabin cruiser, Aloha, and trying to save it rather than joining three passengers on a life raft, Frank Matson, 32, skipper of the boat today lost his life when the boat exploded in Lake Michigan.

The passengers, who were inspecting the boat to buy it, were saved by canoeists.

TWO MOVEMENTS ARE REPORTED ON FOOT IN EFFORT TO CHANGE DRY LAW OF STATE

COLUMBUS, O., June 27.—The prohibition question may stimulate considerable state-wide interest in the November elections this year, despite the fact that this is an off-year politically in the Buckeye state.

Two separate movements are on foot looking toward the possible elimination at the polls this fall of the dry amendment to the state constitution.

Senator Joseph Ackerman, (R), of Cleveland, is directing the activities of one group of citizens that is circulating petitions upon which voters opposing prohibition are attaching their signatures. Another set of petitions, sponsored by the National Liberty League, with headquarters in Dayton, is being circulated with the view to amending the constitution so as to permit the manufacture, sale and possession of liquor.

To insure submission of which a proposal at the November election, at least 200,000 valid signatures of Ohio voters must be filed at the office of Secretary of State

Clarence J. Brown not later than 60 days prior to November 3—election day.

Additional interest in the November election will be found in the campaign which will be waged this summer and fall in support of the proposal, adopted by the state legislature, that the Buckeye state voters provide for the issuance of $7,500,000 in bonds for the purpose of financing the state welfare department's institutional building program.

Possibility that two other proposed amendments to the state constitution may be submitted to the electors next fall also loomed today.

These proposals, presented by Attorney Charles Hubbell, (D), of Cleveland, are pending in the office of the secretary of state. Hubbell was an unsuccessful candidate for state supreme judge last year.

One of Hubbell's proposals is that the constitution provides four-year terms for governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, attorney general, state treasurer,

state auditor and four-and-six-year terms for various county officers, as well as to permit judges of the various courts, from the supreme court down, to retain office until they are 70 years of age, or otherwise disqualified.

The other proposal by Hubbell is to amend the constitutional provisions relative to the initiative and referendum so to provide that when proposed constitutional amendments are submitted to the voters, the proposed amendment and the one to be repealed shall be voted upon separately, that person that have been political nominees may submit proposed changes in the constitution without having to file the customary number of signatures of voters, and that, when a newly-adopted amendment is not consistent with some other provision of the constitution, the courts shall construe to be effective the one adopted at the later date and which received the greatest number of affirmative votes.

The special congressional elections, called by Governor George

White, to be held in November for the selection of successors to the late Representative Nicholas Longworth, (R), in the first district, Cincinnati, and the late Congressman Charles A. Mooney, (D), in the 20th district, Cleveland, also will materially deepen political interest particularly in those districts in view of the fact that the question whether the Democrats or Republicans will control the next Congress may depend upon the outcome of these two elections.

Members of county boards of education are the only county positions to be filled at the November election in Ohio this year. No state officials are to be chosen.

Local political interest this year will center in the nomination at the August primaries of persons which will be elected in November to hold municipal, village, township and school district offices.

There will be candidates for mayor, councilmen, city or village solicitor, township trustees and clerks, justices of the peace, members of local boards of education

WHITE'S PLEA CUTS BUDGET 19 MILLIONS

Money Bill Calls For 119
Millions, Cooper's Asked
139 Millions

COLUMBUS, June 27.—Instead of spending $139,082,506 for all purposes of state government in the 1931-32 biennium, as proposed in the budget recommended by Myers Y. Cooper, former governor, the administration of Governor George White will pay out not more than $119,760,000. Admonished by Governor White that economy is imperative, the general assembly whittled the budget prepared by the outgoing governor last December, as required by law, until a reduction of $19,322,506 had been made in the expenditures proposed by the preceding administration.

MESSAGE WARNING

Governor White had warned in a message to the legislature: "It is for the general assembly to decide to what extent state services shall be curtailed or abolished. There is nothing for the administrative departments to do but cut the garment to the cloth. . . . You will recall the deficit in the state treasury which the present administration inherited from the previous administration. . . . The present fiscal biennium was entered into with a cash deficit of approximately $4,000,000 and a bookkeeping deficit of approximately $9,000,000. . . . Let me caution you against making appropriations in excess of income which may reasonably be expected. Appropriations beyond income are nearly always the precursors of deficits."

Thus advised that he would veto any extravagant allowances, that economy meant economy, the legislature set to work to heed Governor White's demands.

It scanned the $79,992,198 general revenue fund appropriations for the biennium approved by the former administration. It read the words of former Governor Cooper: "These recommendations represent my best judgment as to the financial needs of the executive departments and administrative agencies of the state." And it sliced the $79,992,198 to $65,160,000 in an effort to conform to the ideas of Governor White. So it effected a reduction of $14,832,198 in general revenue fund expenses for which taxpayers provide the money.

The general revenue fund pays for the operation of state departments, institutions and universities. The remaining $54,700,600 of the total two-year appropriation of $119,760,000 must be used for construction and maintenance of highways and for various special governmental activities financed by special taxes.

TO STUDY BILL

Whether the legislators in attempting "to cut the garment to the cloth" have done a satisfactory job will be determined after scrutiny of the appropriation bill in Governor White's office. If it is found in such analysis that money can be saved here and there on items authorized by the assembly these items will be stricken out of the bill by the Governor before he signs it.

Sunday, July 5th—patriotic service.

No law of man, no modern perversion can change the age-old need of man for a day of rest and worship. Nations have tried it. France tried it in the days of her revolution. Russia is trying it now under her Soviet government. None of us would want to live in revolutionary France nor in Soviet Russia. No nation ever achieved under atheism. If our country is not to become Godless each one of us must help to preserve the church and its day of worship from commercialism and atheism. To do this the man on the outside of the church has just as great a responsibility as the man on the inside. A man may be moral and law-abiding, he must be more. There are sins of omission as well as sins of commission. Do your part tomorrow as a true man and a patriot who loves his country. Go to church. Take a friend with you.

Creamed Comments on S. S. Lesson

A REVIEW OF THE QUARTER ENDING JUNE 28. BY LESSONS.

I. Jesus Teaches Humility
Jesus put the case before his hearers in such a light that they were silenced and then he healed the afflicted man: he gave an evaluation of children who are pure and humble.

II. The Prodigal Son
Here is a vivid picture of the work of sin, beginning with a desire to get away from home to see the world and ending in degradation; sin deadened the soul of the prodigal, but it could not deaden the father's love.

III. The Rich Man and Lazarus
Our future is not determined by social conditions, by our environment. The man having the hardest time on earth may have the easiest time getting into Heaven.

IV. How to Pray
There is a danger that our prayers become formal, meaningless, selfish, as in the case of the Pharisee. There was something in the heart of the publican that made him pray. Real prayer originates in the impulses and desires of the soul.

V. Jesus in the Home of Zaccheus
Jesus is interested in all men; as a man's interest in Him increases, Jesus comes closer and closer to that man and reveals himself in acts of love and mercy.

VI. The Parable of the Pounds
The pounds represent our personal endowments and possessions which are entrusted to us to use in the service of our Lord. There are rewards promised in proportion to the profits gained in the use of personal endowments and possessions. Christ's strongest expressions of condemnation were of those who failed to use their abilities.

VII. Jesus Enters Jerusalem As King
Of course there are critics present, the inevitable Pharisees and they are especially fault-finding with the singing children, but Jesus rebuked them and said a good word in praise of His children. The Kingdom of Heaven does not come by observation, with processions and banners, noise and excitement but quietly as the day dawns.

VIII. Jesus Preparing for The End
The emblems in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper are rich in ideas and memories and are still the bread of life to the soul. The ordinance has also in it a gleam of prophecy and binds Christ's first coming with his second coming. It has not yet come to its perfect blossom and its ripe fruit and full significance are yet to be fulfilled.

IX. Jesus in Gethsemane
The sovereignty of Jesus was through suffering; great is His sovereignty and equally great was His suffering. It is necessary for His followers to suffer with Him if they will reign with Him, but in all suffering with Him there is provided the needed strength for that hour.

X. Jesus Crucified
"No cross, no crown." No other founder of any other religion leaves a record of a cross. No other religion reveals God so satisfactorily as the Christian religion. Christ showed the Father to the world in the deepest sense on the cross.

XI. Resurrection and Ascension
The resurrection of Christ was a fuller revelation of Himself; under His direction, God's revelation is continued through the Holy Spirit.

XII. The Sin of Causing Others to Stumble
God's ideal for the human race is that there should be one great divine family governed by the principles of a loving Father who does not want a single member of his family wounded, offended, despised or grieved.

WHAT PLANS WOULD YOU SUGGEST TO HOLD THE INTEREST OF THE OLDER BOYS AND GIRLS IN THE DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL THIS YEAR?

Pupil participation is the new note that is being emphasized increasingly in the program of a successful vacation Bible school. The school might be organized into some such group as the assembly of the League of Nations. A teacher in such a group said of this plan: "The democratic spirit has found expression in the school council. Rules and regulations have not been imposed upon the group by some arbitrary or external authority, but have worked out from within the council and were made and obeyed because of the total situation. I found that enforcing the will of the school is a means far safer than imposing my own will upon the class." The older children might assist in planning the whole program with the leaders and teachers providing an excellent chance for Christian companionship. The course of study is not so important in itself as the injecting of Christian principles regardless of the means used.

Christianity and The Church

Christianity is making steady progress, is overcoming persecution is stronger and more widely spread than ever before, is directing the course of civilization and is bearing the hopes of the human race.

The church teaches Christianity and is the great moral, restraining, ennobling and stimulating influences which works like a leaven from within upon all the ramifications of society.

The future progress and happiness of the world will depend largely upon the support and development of the church: Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

Sunday, July 5th—patriotic service.

No law of man, no modern perversion can change the age-old need of man for a day of rest and worship. Nations have tried it. France tried it in the days of her revolution. Russia is trying it now under her Soviet government. None of us would want to live in revolutionary France nor in Soviet Russia. No nation ever achieved under atheism. If our country is not to become Godless each one of us must help to preserve the church and its day of worship from commercialism and atheism. To do this the man on the outside of the church has just as great a responsibility as the man on the inside. A man may be moral and law-abiding, he must be more. There are sins of omission as well as sins of commission. Do your part tomorrow as a true man and a patriot who loves his country. Go to church. Take a friend with you.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

A REVIEW OF THE QUARTER ENDING JUNE 28. By Lessons.

I. Jesus Teaches Humility
Jesus put the case before his hearers in such a light that they were silenced and then he healed the afflicted man; he gave an evaluation of children who are pure and humble.

II. The Prodigal Son
Here is a vivid picture of the work of sin, beginning with a desire to get away from home to see the world and ending in degradation; sin deadened the soul of the prodigal, but it could not deaden the father's love.

III. The Rich Man and Lazarus
Our future is not determined by social conditions, by our environment. The man having the hardest time on earth may have the easiest time getting into Heaven.

IV. How to Pray
There is a danger that our prayers become formal, meaningless, selfish, as in the case of the Pharisee. There was something in the heart of the publican that made him pray. Real prayer originates in the impulses and desires of the soul.

V. Jesus in the Home of Zaccheus

Jesus is interested in all men; as a man's interest in Him increases, Jesus comes closer and closer to that man and reveals himself in acts of love and mercy.

VI. The Parable of the Pounds
The pounds represent our personal endowments and possessions which are intrusted to us to use in the service of our Lord. There are rewards promised in proportion to the profits gained in the use of personal endowments and possessions. Christ's strongest expressions of condemnation were of those who failed to use their abilities.

VII. Jesus Enters Jerusalem As King

Of course there are critics present, the inevitable Pharisees and they are especially fault-finding with the singing children, but Jesus rebuked them and said a good word in praise of His children. The Kingdom of Heaven does not come by observation, with processions and banners, noise and excitement but quietly as the day dawns.

VIII. Jesus Preparing for The End

The emblems in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper are rich in ideas and memories and are still the bread of life to the soul. The ordinance has also in it a gleam of prophecy and binds Christ's first coming with his second coming. It has not yet come to its perfect blossom and its ripe fruit and full significance are yet to be fulfilled.

IX. Jesus in Gethsemane

The sovereignty of Jesus was through suffering; great is His sovereignty and equally great was His suffering. It is necessary for His followers to suffer with Him if they will reign with Him; but in all suffering with Him there is provided the needed strength for that hour.

X. Jesus Crucified

"No cross, no crown." No other founder of any other religion leaves a record of a cross. No other religion reveals God so satisfactorily as the Christian religion. Christ showed the Father to the world in the deepest sense on the cross.

XL. Resurrection and Ascension
The resurrection of Christ was a fuller revelation of Himself; under His direction, God's revelation is continued through the Holy Spirit.

XII. The Sin of Causing Others to Stumble

God's ideal for the human race is that there should be one great divine family governed by the principles of a loving Father who does not want a single member of his family wounded, offended, despised or grieved.

BOOK REVIEW

Highways to international goodwill by Van Kirk, The Abingdon Press, presents a set of convincing arguments for the theory that we are standing on the threshold of a new era of Peace and Goodwill among nations. This book may be used profitably in study classes and discussion group. Pertinent questions are inserted at the end of each chapter.

He who seldom thinks of heaven is not likely to get thither, as the only way to hit the mark is to keep the eye fixed on it.

(Send church and Sunday school problems in question form to the church editor; question with answer will appear in later issue.)

WHAT PLANS WOULD YOU SUGGEST TO HOLD THE INTEREST OF THE OLDER BOYS AND GIRLS IN THE DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL THIS YEAR?

Pupil participation is the new note that is being emphasized increasingly in the program of a successful vacation Bible school. The school might be organized into some such group as the assembly of the League of Nations. A teacher in such a group said of this plan: "The democratic spirit has found expression in the school council. Rules and regulations have not been imposed upon the group by some arbitrary or external authority, but have worked out from within the council and were made and obeyed because of the total situation. I found that enforcing the will of the school is a means far safer than imposing my own will upon the class."

The older children might assist in planning the whole program with the leaders and teachers providing an excellent chance for Christian companionship. The course of study is not so important in itself as the injecting of Christian principles regardless of the means used.

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

One for each Sunday school lesson for the quarter ending June 28.

1. Why is a child so important?
2. What is the penalty of selfishness?
3. What are some of the consequences of sin?
4. What was wrong with the Pharisees' prayer?
5. How proceed to have Christ a guest in the home?
6. How may spiritual power be increased?
7. How prepare for Christ's triumphant entrance into our midst?
8. How account for Judas' betrayal of our Lord?
9. Why must good men suffer so many times?
10. Why is the cross so central in the Christian religion?
11. How does the fact of Christ's resurrection help our faith?
12. Why ought greater care be

E. Main St.

W. F. Rutherford, Pastor.

The study period of our church is so arranged that the very best that is in you will find expression. The worship period will help you to discover the power that will make you adequate to meet the needs of this age.

Our services open at 9:15, with a class for every age.

Morning worship at 10:15. Subject, "The Marks of the New Birth."

Evening services at 6:30, with the young people and at 7:30 the regular evening service.

Miss Helen Stoker of Columbus, will sing at the evening service. Miss Stoker has chosen for her offering two songs. The first, "Searing," by Tosti, the second, "Farewell," by Russel. Her many friends will be glad to know that her appearance here gives them a chance to enjoy her personality as well as her voice.

Subject for the evening sermon is, "A Call to Heroism."

Brits Beaten In Doubles Defend Singles Laurels

SCIO COUNTRY CLUB, CO-
MBUS, O., June 27.—John Bull's Ryder cup golf team, badly humiliated in two-man play yesterday, today based all its hope of retaining the cherished mug upon that old British custom of defeating Americans in the singles.

When they teed off here today,
Captain Charles Whitcombe's squad, frantically trying to recover from the rout it suffered yesterday from Captain Walter Hagen's long-driving, careful-putting team, was smarting under a three-point handicap.

Since the match is for 12 points,
and seven are needed to win, Captain Whitcombe desperately sought to bring the Britishers out of their slump by careful arrangement of today's singles lineups.

Whitcombe, the singles champion of the British Isles, pitted himself against Captain Hagen in the fifth match of the forenoon.

In an effort to strengthen the British lineup, Whitcombe withdrew George Duncan, the British veteran, who has been in ill health, himself taking Duncan's place, and also pulled Syd Easter-brook off the squad and sent in Bert Rodson, 24, the "baby" of the visiting team.

Well satisfied with the results of the first day's play, Captain Hagen stood pat on his lineup with a single exception Craig Wood, the New Jersey star, who sat on the bench yesterday, was sent into the singles to replace Lou Diegel.

Horton Smith, "the Joplin
ghost" who sat on the bench yesterday, remained there today. Far off his game, Smith is the only member of the American squad who has not been permitted to play.

In addition to the fifth match,
"the battle of captains," other pairings today, which were kept secret by the rival leaders until late yesterday, were:

Billie Burke (U. S.) and Archie Compston (G. B.).

Gene Sarazen (U. S.) and Fred
Robson (G. B.).

Johnny Farrell (U. S.) and W.
H. Davies (G. B.).

Whiffy Cox (U. S.) and Abe
Mitchell (G. B.).

Densmore Shute (U. S.) and Bert Rodson (G. B.).

Al Espinosa (U. S.) and Ernest Philcombe (G. B.).

Craig Wood (U. S.) and Arthur
Havers (G. B.).

Although Americans habitually win the foursomes from the British, the margin of the Stars and Stripes over the Union Jack yesterday—three to one—is equal to the largest in the history of the international competition. A similar verdict was turned in on the first day of the 1927 duel at Worcester.

Basing their fears on the history of the previous matches, the Americans feared today that the British team—supposedly the strongest that ever has been sent against the Americans—will rally in the singles.

Although the Hagen-Shute
triumph over Duncan and Havers, coming at the 27th hole, 10 up and nine to play, was by far the most sensational of the opening day's battles, the scoring of the second American point by Sarazen and Farrell, over Compston and Davies, was almost as one-sided.

Ending a deadlock which developed early in the morning,
Sarazen and Farrell whipped Compston and Davies, eight up and seven to go, on the 29th.

Close behind came Mitchell and Robson, the only British pair able to crowd out the American opposition. They defeated Espinosa and Diegel on the 35th, three up and one to play. A moment before Espinosa had erratically pitched into the creek and Diegel, believing the cause hopeless, picked up.

Because little had been expected of Whiffy Cox and Billy Burke, Americans who were chosen during qualifying rounds early this week, their win over Easterbrook and Ernest Whitcombe, three up and two to play, on the 34th, was particularly pleasing to Captain Hagen.

Hagen and Shute were the day's outstanding American heroes. The one shot that the crowd remembered was Hagen's brassie within six feet of the cup on the 18th green. When Shute pushed the ball in, he registered an eagle three.

Clouting 'Em for Phillies

For 15 years Russell "Buzz" Arlett, 34-year-old recruit outfielder of the Phillies, who has been making life miserable for opposing pitchers this season, melted in the minors. National League fans may be surprised at his terrific hitting in his first year in major league, but old teammates of Arlett say he has always been a heavy hitter, never averaging below .330. He was the Pacific Coast's best hitter before the Phillies grabbed him. And are they ever glad? Yeah, we'll say. "Buzz" is shown above in a characteristic swing, at right with a horse-shoe good luck omen and below is pictured the way he holds his bat.

ROBINS TURN TABLES ON CARD TEAM BUMPING BIG BURLEIGH

NEW YORK, June 27.—Psy-

Instead of being depressed by evening at Utilities field when they bowed to the Independent Grocers

by the score of 8 to 5.

With their owner, G. I. Nickerson in right field, the Oils looked great in the first part of the game, counting three runs in the first stanza. However a long drive to right field in the second together with several other nice hits, allowed the Grocers to retabate and score three runs in the last of the second.

The Grocers continued scoring, counting three in the fourth and one each in the sixth and seventh to win the game. The Oils secured their other two counts in the fourth and ninth.

FATALITIES IN STATE LOWER

14,141 Is Figure of Accidents
In Ohio During May,
Report Shows.

Ohio industrial workers filed with the Industrial Commission in May, 14,141 accident and occupational disease claims, which is 4,628 less than in May, 1930. The 96 fatalities reported is a total eight less than in the corresponding month last year. Time loss also was reduced, the 790,373 days reported for May being 137,506 days less than in May, 1930.

The relative position of the five principal causes of accidents, which show but slight variation month
after month and year after year,
was maintained, and in this connection, Superintendent Thomas F.
Kearns of the Division of Safety and Hygiene announces an analysis of accidents as to principal causes, made by the statistical laboratory of the division.

"A statistical diagnosis of the said Kearns, "discloses the fact that approximately two-thirds of industrial mishaps can be attributed to five principal causes.

"In 1930, Ohio industries reported 212,750 accidents and of this number, 141,805 were due to these five causes, given in the order of the numerical strength of their contributions to the state's accident experience.

- 1.—Machinery, with 39,202 accidents, or 18.4 per cent of the total of all industrial accidents.
- 2.—Handling objects, 35,294 accidents, or 16.6 per cent of the total.
- 3.—Stepping upon or striking against objects, 25,342 accidents,
or 11.9 per cent of the total
- 4.—Hand tools, 21,631 accidents,
or 10.2 per cent of the total.
- 5.—Falls of persons, 19,836 accidents, or 9.3 per cent of the total.

"The total number of accidents due to these five causes is 66.4 per cent of all accidents in the state.

"We would suggest to industrial safety organization of the state that they figure out whether or not the percentage quoted are representative of conditions in their plants. A variance will no doubt be found, dependent upon the nature of the industry, but we believe that if all plant accidents are segregated as to cause, it will be found that the five principal causes for the state as a whole, will be found to be the five principal causes of the average industry.

And this being established, safety effort should be focused upon these particular sources of accidents. A sincere effort should be made to do all that is humanly possible to eliminate mechanical hazards and,
once this is accomplished, the way is open for a consistent and firm appeal to workers to do their share
by adhering to safe practices."

May accidents in Pickaway-co industries totalled 24, of which

Chutes to Safety

Major James H. (Jimmy) Doolittle, former ace stunt flyer of the Army Air Corps, leaped to safety via his parachute when the fabric tore loose from the wings of his plane while traveling at a speed of 235 miles an hour over East St. Louis, Ill. Jimmy had a narrow escape from death, as the plane was only 100 feet off the ground when it began to tear apart. By nosing it up, Doolittle managed to get an altitude of 400 feet before leaping.

Brits Beaten In Doubles Defend Singles Laurels

COLUMBUS, O., June 27.—John Bull's Ryder cup golf team, badly humiliated in two-man play yesterday, today based all its hope of retaining the cherished mug upon that old British custom of defeating Americans in the singles.

When they teed off here today, Captain Charles Whitcombe's squad, frantically trying to recover from the rout it suffered yesterday from Captain Walter Hagen's long-driving, careful-putting team, was smarting under a three-point handicap.

Since the match is for 12 points, and seven are needed to win, Captain Whitcombe desperately sought to bring the Britishers out of their slump by careful arrangement of today's singles lineups.

Whitcombe, the singles champion of the British Isles, pitted himself against Captain Hagen in the fifth match of the forenoon.

In an effort to strengthen the British lineup, Whitcombe withdrew George Duncan, the British veteran, who has been in ill health, himself taking Duncan's place, and also pulled Syd Easterbrook off the squad and sent in Bert Hodson, 24, the "baby" of the visiting team.

Well satisfied with the results of the first day's play, Captain Hagen stood pat on his lineup, with a single exception. Craig Wood, the New Jersey star, who sat on the bench yesterday, was sent into the singles to replace Lou Diegel.

Horton Smith, "the Joplin ghost" who sat on the bench yesterday, remained there today. Far off his game, Smith is the only member of the American squad who has not been permitted to play.

In addition to the fifth match, "the battle of captains," other pairings today, which were kept secret by the rival leaders until late yesterday, were:

Billie Burke (U. S.) and Archie Compston (G. B.).

Gene Sarazen (U. S.) and Fred Robson (G. B.).

Johnny Farrell (U. S.) and W. H. Davies (G. B.).

Whiffy Cox (U. S.) and Abe Mitchell (G. B.).

Densmore Shute (U. S.) and Bert Hodson (G. B.).

Al Espinosa (U. S.) and Ernest Whitcombe (G. B.).

Craig Wood (U. S.) and Arthur Havers (G. B.).

Although Americans habitually win the foursomes from the British, the margin of the Stars and Stripes over the Union Jack yesterday—three to one—is equal to the largest in the history of the international competition. A similar verdict was turned in on the first day of the 1927 duel at Worcester.

Basing their fears on the history of the previous matches, the Americans feared today that the British team—supposedly the strongest that ever has been sent against the Americans—will rally in the singles.

Although the Hagen-Shute triumph over Duncan and Havers, coming at the 27th hole, 10 up and nine to play, was by far the most sensational of the opening day's battle, the scoring of the second American point by Sarazen and Farrell, over Compston and Davies, was almost as one-sided.

Ending a deadlock which developed early in the morning, Sarazen and Farrell whipped Compston and Davies, eight up and seven to go, on the 29th.

Close behind came Mitchell and Robson, the only British pair able to crowd out the American opposition. They defeated Espinosa and Diegel on the 35th, three up and one to play. A moment before Espinosa had erratically pitched into the creek and Diegel, believing the cause hopeless, picked up.

Because little had been expected of Whiffy Cox and Billy Burke, Americans who were chosen during qualifying rounds early this week, their win over Easterbrook and Ernest Whitcombe, three up and two to play, on the 34th, was particularly pleasing to Captain Hagen.

Hagen and Shute were the day's outstanding American heroes. The one shot that the crowd remembered was Hagen's brassie within six feet of the cup on the 18th green. When Shute pushed the ball in, he registered an eagle three.

Clouting 'Em for Phillies

For 15 years Russell "Buzz" Arlett, 34-year-old recruit outfielder of the Phillies, who has been making life miserable for opposing pitchers this season, melted in the minors. National League fans may be surprised at his terrific hitting in his first year in major league, but old teammates of Arlett say he has always been a heavy hitter, never averaging below .330. He was the Pacific Coast's best hitter before the Phillies grabbed him. And are they ever glad? Yeah, we'll say. "Buzz" is shown above in a characteristic swing, at right with a horse-shoe good luck omen and below is pictured the way he holds his bat.

ROBINS TURN TABLES ON CARD TEAM BUMPING BIG BURLEIGH

NEW YORK, June 27.—Psychology, which in some cases has more effect than a home run or a right cross to the jaw, means little to the Brooklyn Robins.

Instead of being depressed by their heart-breaking defeat at the hands of St. Louis on Thursday when Derringer won a 1-0 duel from Dazzy Vance, the surprising Brooklynites came back faster than a bad check yesterday to hand the Cards the drubbing of their lives, 16 to 5.

Burleigh Grimes, who had not yielded a run in 17 straight innings, was the victim of a boisterous uprising in the first frame when Uncle Wilbert Robinson's nephews shoved eight runs across the pan in their biggest scoring spree of the season.

By the time the last towel was lifted, the Robins had collected four home runs, five doubles, a triple and five singles. Frederick was the big shot with four hits, including a homer.

Due to the clownishness of Outfielder Nick Cullip in fielding hits by O'Farrell and Fullis, which went for a triple and a homer, respectively, the Giants beat Cincinnati, 2 to 0, and advanced to win 3½ games of St. Louis. Bill Walker held the Reds to four hits and subdued them in an hour and 28 minutes, the shortest contest of the season at the Polo grounds.

With Seibold and Cantwell holding the visiting firemen to four hits, the Boston Braves knocked off the Cubs again, 7 to 3.

Watt, rookie hurler, won another game for the Phillies, beating Pittsburgh 13 to 2. Eleven doubles were made in the game.

Washington dropped a game and a half back of the idle Athletics by losing to the White Sox, 4 to 3. Pat Caraway, picturesque Sox southpaw, held the Senators to five hits, which included two home runs by Joey Kukul.

The St. Louis Browns chalked up their fifth straight triumph by shading the Boston Red Sox, 3 to 2. Hits by two rookies, Betten-court and Burns, sent in the winning run.

Rain kept other clubs idle.

GROCCERS WHIP OILS, 8 TO 5

Nickerson's Guiding Hand In Right Field Fails to Bring Victory.

The Circleville Oils lost Friday evening at Utilities field when they bowed to the Independent Grocers by the score of 8 to 5.

With their owner, G. I. Nickerson in right field, the Oils looked great in the first part of the game, counting three runs in the first stanza. However a long drive to right field in the second together with several other nice hits, allowed the Grocers to retaliate and score three runs in the last of the second.

The Grocers continued scoring, counting three in the fourth, and one each in the sixth and seventh to win the game. The Oils secured their other two counts in the fourth and ninth.

Hay Fever
SOME people take their vacation in July because it is usually hot and sultry. Others out of force of habit. Still others because the weather at this time of year is peculiarly favorable where they want to spend their two weeks' off. But there is still a fourth group that flees from the world of drudgery in July not out of fear of drudgery, but out of fear of hay fever, that dread malady that afflicts many humans at this time of year.

Hay fever time is just a-dawning and the scientists have no comforting words for the victims. The pollen, which is blamed for the nasal irritation known as hay fever, is expected to fill the air more than usual this year. Bad news for the sufferers.

There is no cure for this strange, highly discriminatory malady which fills a fortnight of every year with agonizing sneezings, red and smarting eyes, and handkerchief-busying sniffing for a goodly portion of the population. There are more "cures" than addicts, some give relief to some, none give relief to all; some get relief from nothing.

Misery being a lover of company, the afflicted may find solace in the knowledge that the disease is spreading. Students of the subject say it is to the greater number of people coming in contact with the pollen-laden air through motoring, hiking, camping and summering in the country.

Heaped upon the physical suffering of the hay fever victim is the mental suffering from being made the object of unsympathetic jokes which may seem funny to the immune but which, in the opinion of the feverish, is brutal persecution. Sufferings of the afflicted are apparent, yet their tribulations are never taken seriously by otherwise sympathetic neighbors and co-workers.

Heaven to the prey of hay fever is the polar region, mid-ocean or some other spot where this summer affliction is unknown.

Happiness
I AM that for which you are looking. I am the goal or religion. I am the objective of philosophy and science. I am the dream of the wretched. I am the quest of the world, the great hunger of humanity.

My dominion over men is worldwide. As children they romp toward me. As old men and women they totter after me. I am an insatiable thirst.

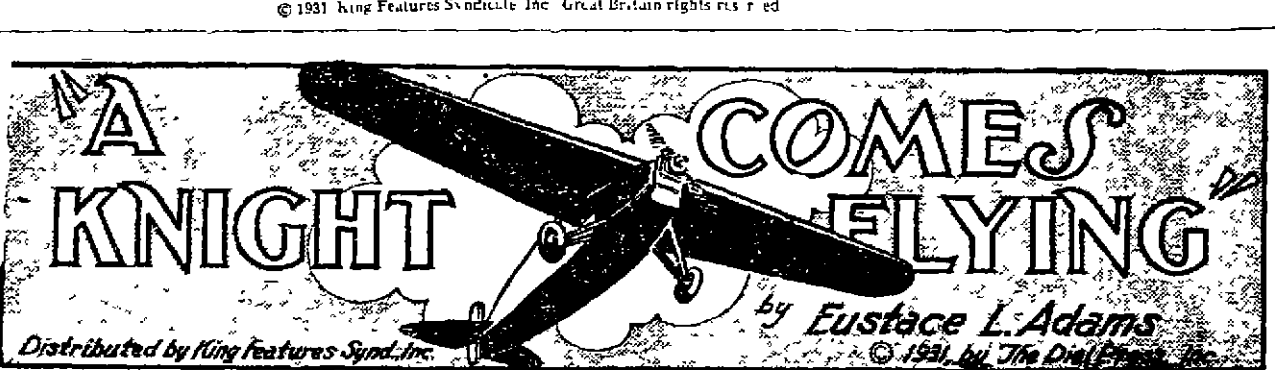

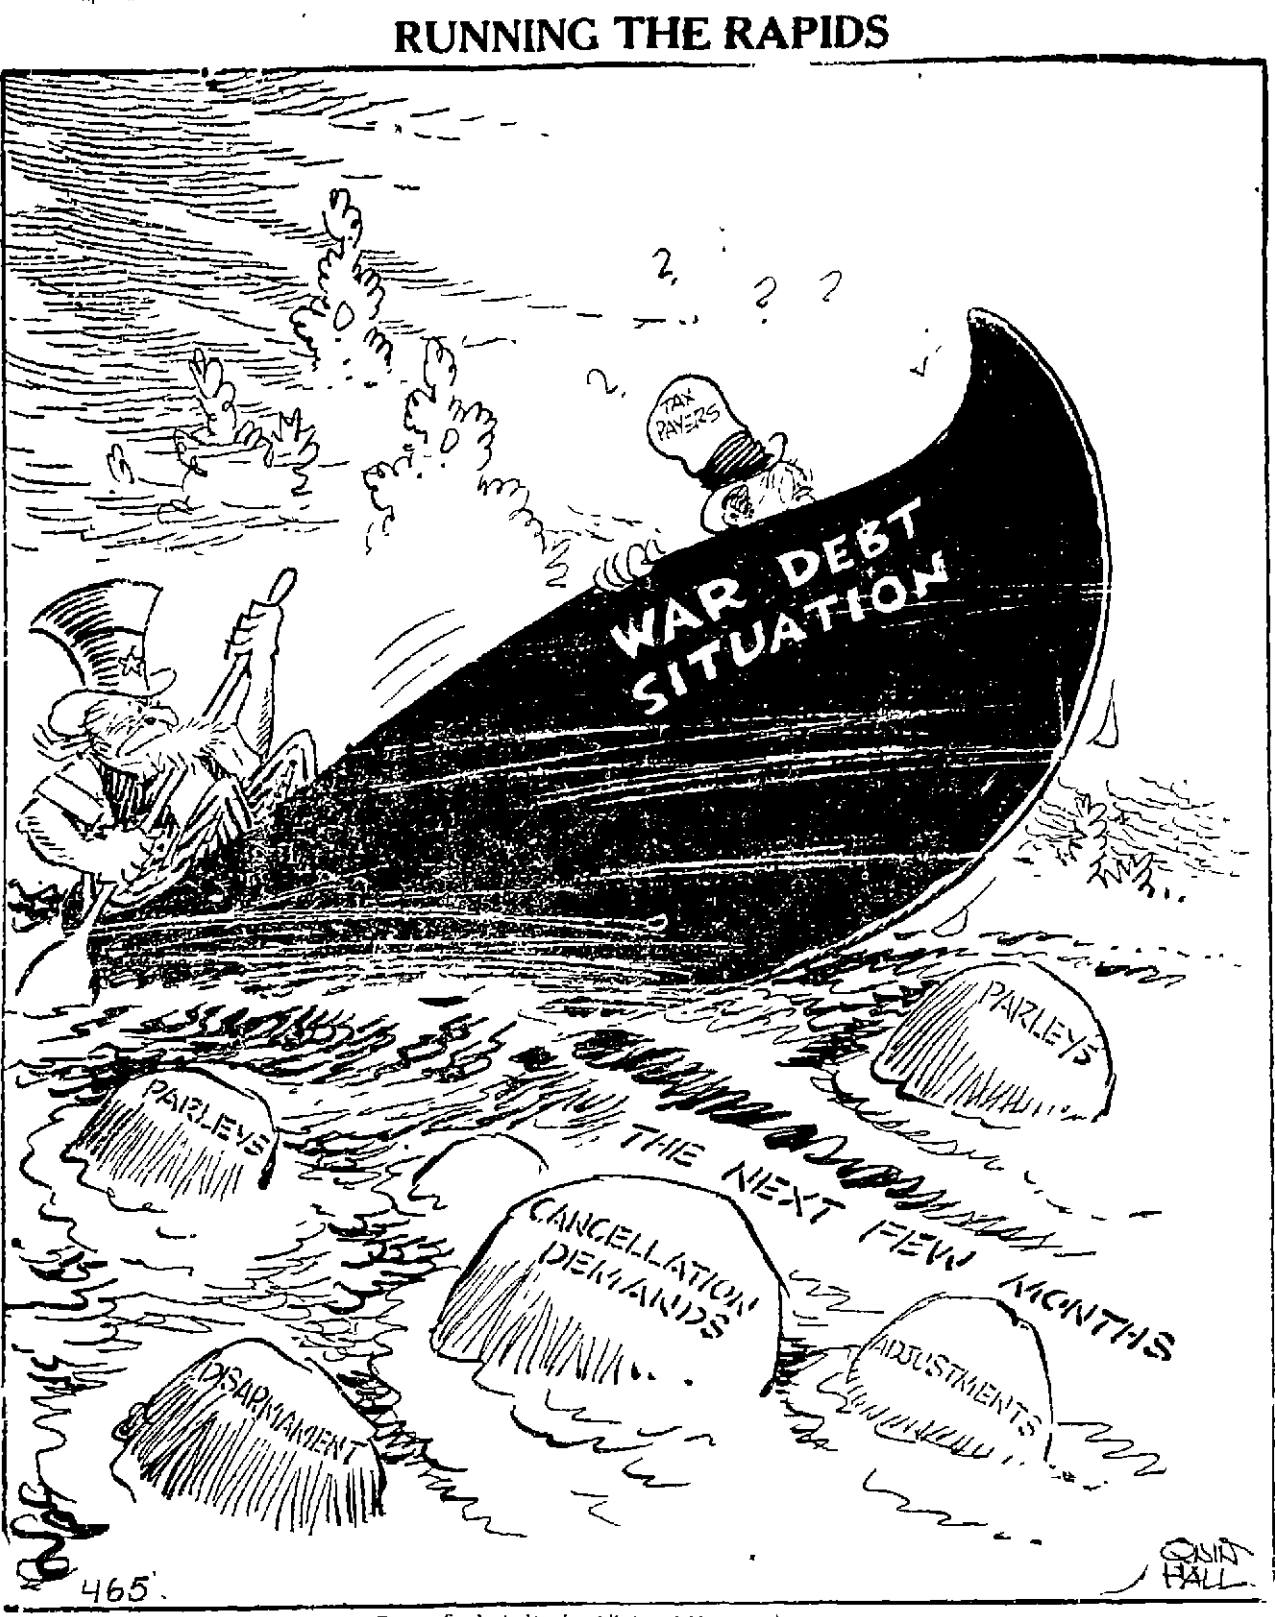

Because of me mankind carries on business and commerce. Because of me the scientist labors long in his laboratory. Because of me untold millions of dollars are spent for the purpose of education. For men know that knowledge, health and business are paths to my domain.

My name is written into the most exalted declaration of independence on earth. The right to the pursuit of me has been written in the hearts of men and sealed with their blood. Civilization is my reward, and man's home is my chief dwelling place.

For all that I am a bright dream and beautiful purpose, the children of men still stumble and fall and bruise themselves in my quest. They still confess me with pleasure and with riches and with power. Yet I am as I always have been. I am the same yesterday, today and forever. The children know me and possess me, and the child-like at heart never lost their hold on me.

Leadership
LEADERS are fashioned in part out of rare human stuff and in part out of the needs of their time. Their capacities are unfolded and enriched by the stress of circumstances, and because some stream of greatness enters into them, their powers are multiplied for the strengthening and guidance of others. Leaders are in this fashion born rather than made, born of necessity and opportunity.

A man is more than a head and hands. The spirit that animates him, a complex of the things he loves and the things he knows reaches out beyond him and re-creates itself in others. For there are spheres of warmth and light around every human soul, which may go forth by mysterious communication to move and sway and motivate the affairs and actions of others. In small matters we speak

CHAPTER XXXIII.
SCATTERING volley of shots met the roaring car as the gunmen on the ground scattered again from before the spinning wheels of the Hispano-Suiza. A single shot smashed its way through the soft fabric of the right front tire. For an instant Talbot thought the car would turn turtle, but Gerry's expert hands fought the wheel and conquered it. A running man threw himself headlong out of the way just as the front bumper flicked his body. By the slightest twist of the wheel Gerry could have run him down. Instead, he turned the reeling car toward another who had stopped to fire.

When Seconds Count.
The sharp tac-tac-tac of a machine gun ripped through the noises of the night. But there was no time to see who was shooting. A man had leaped to the running board and was leveling an automatic straight at Talbot's face. Gerry shook the steering wheel. The car wobbled drunkenly but the man clung on. Instantly Talbot's hand dropped to the door handle, twisted it and threw his weight against the panel. It swung wide and flipped the man from the running board. The rear wheel missed him by scant fractions of an inch.

The Hispano-Suiza was dashing at and among the scattering gunmen like a rogue elephant running amuck, its single bright eye gleaming malignantly as it swirled here and there in response to Gerry's jerking hands on the wheel. Its two passengers could hear the snarling drone of Dave's airplane, but, for the moment, they had their own battle to fight. Their only hope lay in a swift, unceasing offensive.

"Look, Gerry!" shouted Talbot, pointing straight along the single beam of the headlight.

There, emerging from the tunnel-like road in the jungle, was an ancient Ford bumping and reeling as it forged slowly ahead over the rough ground. And emboldened in the white glare from Gerry's headlights were two girls and a black negress. Despite the mad storm of noise, shots and confusion, the little car headed straight across the field, its rusty radiator pointed at the idling airplane before the open hangar door.

The Hispano-Suiza slowed around at full speed, racing toward the shabby little car which was already the target for half-a-dozen guns. Twenty yards away was a man who slowly, carefully, raised a double-barreled shotgun and a med it at the Ford. The thunder sport car cut him down in his tracks.

The Ford came to a shuddering stop. From the other side of the field came the hammering of the machine gun and the howl of the airplane's engine. The girls sat still in their car, not knowing what to do.

"Ah, the fools!" gasped Talbot. "The brave little fools!"

The Hispano-Suiza lurched around them in a whirl of dust. Gerry reached down and yanked at the emergency brake.

"Jump, Talbot!" he panted. "I've got to get Joan!"

Dave sat on the edge of his seat cushion as if by so doing he could help his thundering plane onward. The air speed meter on the instrument board indicated 150 miles an hour, but the carpet of trees below moved beneath the fuselage with heartbreaking slowness. Never had time dragged so!

A Big Chance.
He saw Gerry's car burst into the open clearing and dash headlong at the line of running men who scattered, wheeled and blazed at it. He glanced upward. If he could but nose down now and dive into that mess he could stop those men from shooting at Gerry and Talbot.

But there, straight ahead, was Joan, still on the box seat of the truck. The man, whose arm held her where she was, waved toward the idling amphibian at the hangar door. Dave saw a man leap into the boat-shaped cockpit of the waiting ship. The slowly revolving propeller churned over with ever-increasing speed. The heavy plane lumbered ahead to meet the truck.

Dave, in a frenzy of impatience, pushed against the stick, nosing the monoplane down into a headlong dive. The altimeter showed 150 miles an hour. Wind howled through wire and struts. The roar of the engine roared in an ear-splitting whine. But still the ship seemed to be dragging along as if somehow anchored to the sky.

The man who was holding Joan looked back over his shoulder. He saw Dave's diving plane and rolled backward from his seat, landing on all fours on the bouncing platform behind the driver. He reached swiftly into the deep shadow beneath the seat. Then he stood erect and swung an odd-shaped, lumpy rifle to his shoulder.

Joan rose to her feet, twisted away from the driver's lurching

"Tetany" Is a Disease of the Ductless Glands

The Lay Public Often Confuses This Ailment with Tetanus, Says Dr. Copeland, Explaining the Difference and Suggesting Treatment

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D., United States Senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

RECENTLY I discussed a disease spoken of as "Tetanus." Because of the similarity in names, it is often confused by the lay public with tetanus or lock-jaw.

Tetany differs from tetanus, in that it is not a disease resulting from an infection. It is due to a failure in the proper absorption of lime by the body. This chemical breakdown is due, undoubtedly, to a disturbance in the operation of one of those mysterious ductless glands. In this case it is the "parathyroid gland."

The parathyroid glands are tiny masses of tissue found in close contact with the thyroid gland. The latter is associated with the "Adam's apple" in the front of the neck. The chief signs of the disease are spasms in the muscles, trembling, and convulsive-like symptoms affecting mainly the hands and feet. It may follow typhoid fever, severe diarrhoea, exposure to cold or rickets.

If the parathyroid glands are removed from a living body this condition will result. It can be produced by any poison that interferes with the human chemistry. The disease is most frequently seen in children, chiefly those who have rickets. It is most to be expected in severe digestive disorders in bottle-fed infants.

Sometimes there is a spasm of the muscles, especially of the arms. This spasm causes the arm to become bent across the chest. The legs become extended, with bending upward of the foot. The muscles of the face are rarely affected. If they are, there is trembling and tremor of the face and a change in the facial expression. The disease is not a fatal one and recovery takes place within a short period. It is essential to remove the cause. In children the whole problem is usually a question of diet. When that is corrected recovery is prompt.

Baths and cold sponging often relieve the muscular spasms. But it is better that no treatment should be attempted until it is directed by a physician. At times these cases are stubborn and require careful and prescriptive.

and plenty of exercise should bring about general results. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

MRS. F. H. M. Q.—What would cause a bitter taste in the mouth? My teeth are in good condition and my tonsils have been removed.

A.—This may be caused by some gastro-intestinal disorder. Watch your diet and be sure that the system is clear. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

MRS. A. R. Q.—What will reduce an enlarged abdomen?

A.—Careful attention to the diet

Answers to Health Queries

MISS E. B. Q.—What do you advise for a red nose? I am only 22 years of age and troubled in this way, especially upon arising in the morning.

A.—This is usually indicative of an intestinal condition. Watch your diet, avoiding rich foods and be sure to keep the system clear. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Hay Fever

SOME people take their vacation in July because it is usually hot and sultry. Others out of force of habit. Still others because the weather at this time of year is peculiarly favorable where they want to spend their two weeks' off. But there is still a fourth group that flees from the world of drudgery, but out of fear of hay fever, that dread malady that afflicts many humans at this time of year.

Hay fever time is just a-dawning and the scientists have no comforting words for the victims. The pollen, which is blamed for the nasal irritation known as hay fever, is expected to fill the air more than usual this year. Bad news for the sufferers.

There is no cure for this strange, highly discriminatory malady which fills a fortnight of every year with agonizing sneezings, red and smarting eyes, and handkerchief-busying sniffing for a goodly portion of the population. There are more "cures" than addicts; some give relief to some, none give relief to all; some get relief from nothing.

Misery being a lover of company, the afflicted may find solace in the knowledge that the disease is spreading. Students of the subject say it is to the greater number of people coming in contact with the pollen-taden air through motoring, hiking, camping and summering in the country.

Heaped upon the physical suffering of the hay fever victim is the mental suffering from being made the object of unsympathetic jokes which may seem funny to the immune but which, in the opinion of the feverish, is brutal persecution. Sufferings of the afflicted are apparent, yet their tribulations are never taken seriously by otherwise sympathetic neighbors and co-workers.

Heaven to the prey of hay fever is the polar region, mid-ocean or some other spot where this summer affliction is unknown.

Happiness

I AM that for which you are looking. I am the goal or religion. I am the objective of philosophy and science. I am the dream of the wretched. I am the quest of the world, the great hunger of humanity.

My dominion over men is worldwide. As children they romp toward me. As old men and women they totter after me. I am an insatiable thirst.

Because of me mankind carries on business and commerce. Because of me the scientist labors long in his laboratory. Because of me untold millions of dollars are spent for the purpose of education. For men know that knowledge, health and business are paths to my domain.

My name is written into the most exalted declaration of independence on earth. The right to the pursuit of me has been written in the hearts of men and sealed with their blood. Civilization is my reward, and man's home is my chief dwelling place.

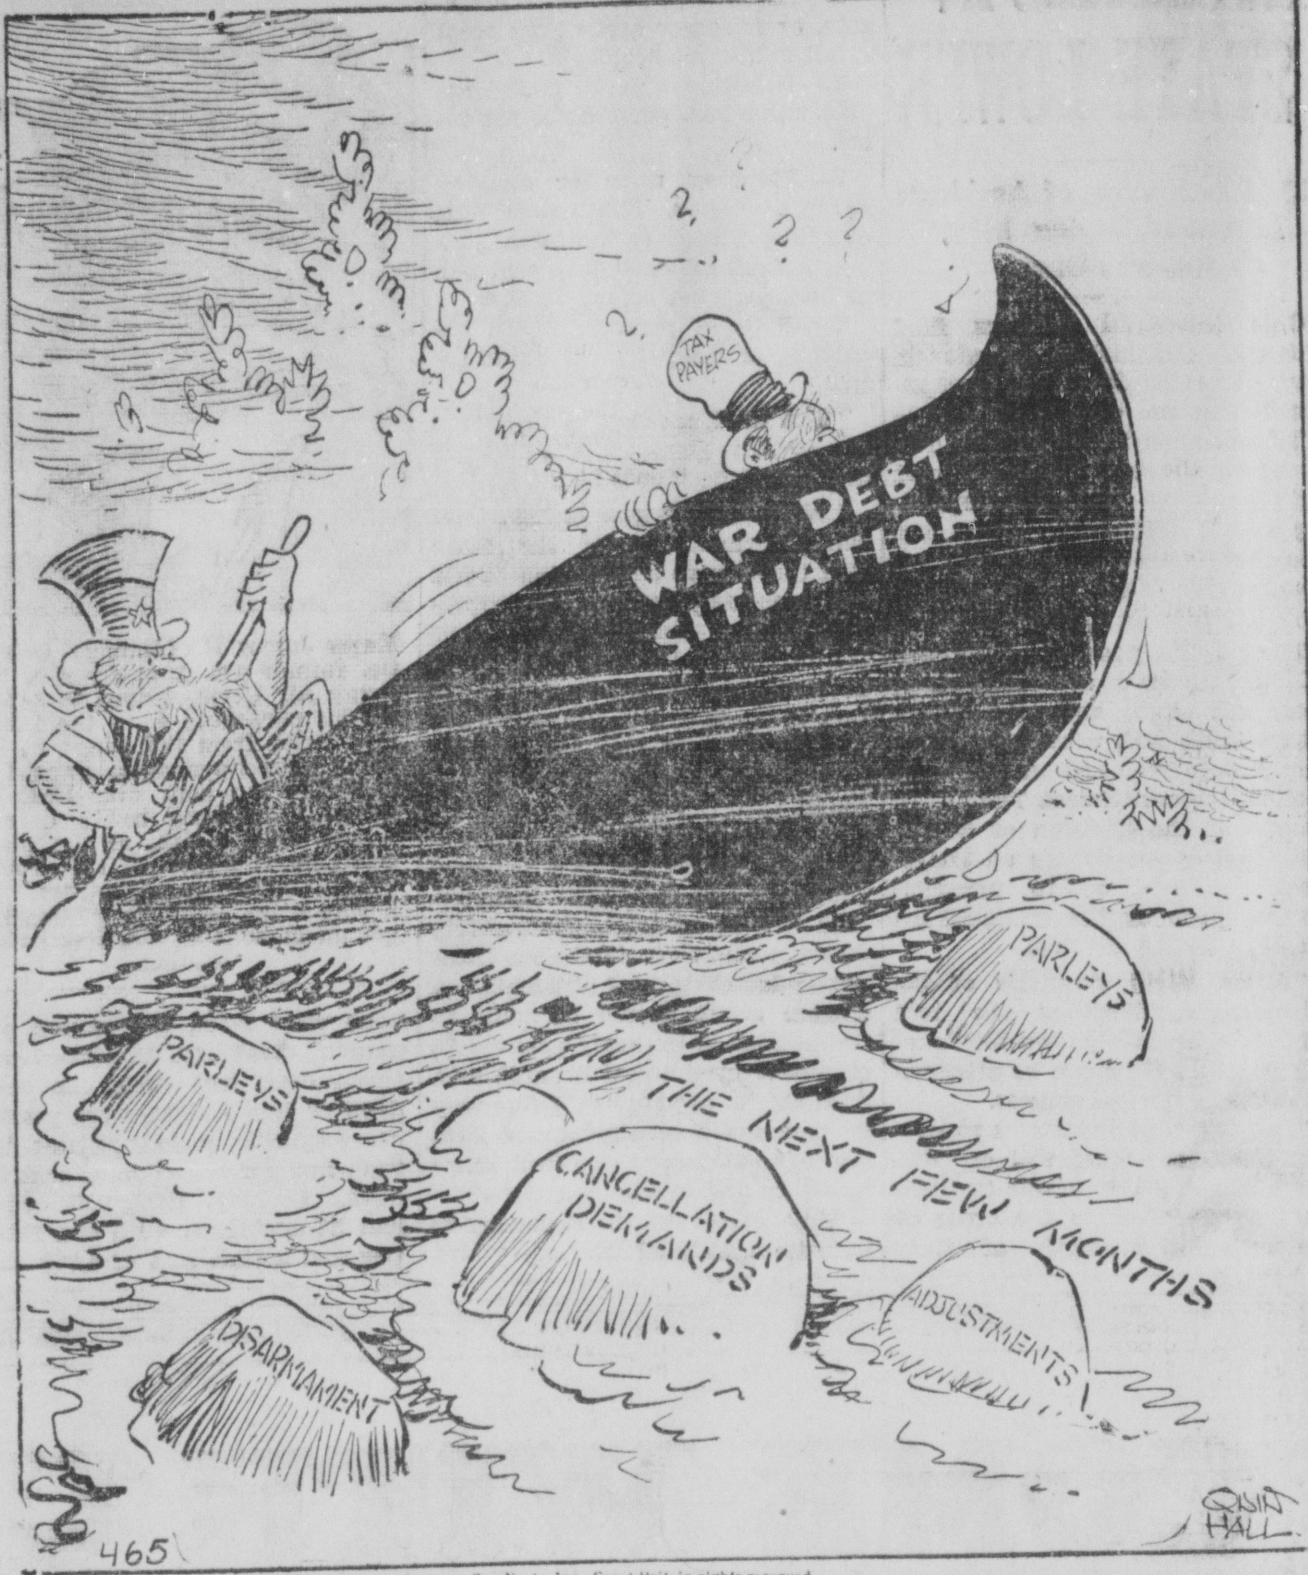

For all that I am a bright dream and beautiful purpose, the children of men still stumble and fall and bruise themselves in my quest. They still confess me with pleasure and with riches and with power. Yet I am as I always have been. I am the same yesterday, today and forever. The children know me and possess me, and the childlike at heart never lost their hold on me.

Leadership

LEADERS are fashioned in part out of rare human stuff and in part out of the needs of their time. Their capacities are unfolded and enriched by the stress of circumstances, and because some stream of greatness enters into them, their powers are multiplied for the strengthening and guidance of others. Leaders are in this fashion born rather than made—born of necessity and opportunity.

A man is more than a head and hands. The spirit that animates him, a complex of the things he loves and the things he knows, reaches out beyond him and recreates itself in others. For there are spheres of warmth and light around every human soul, which may go forth by mysterious communication to move and away and motivate the affairs and actions of others. In small matters we speak

RUNNING THE RAPIDS

CHAPTER XXXIII.
SCATTERING volleys of shots met the roaring car as the gunmen on the ground scattered again from before the spinning wheels of the Hispano-Suiza. A single shot smashed its way through the soft fabric of the right front tire. For an instant Talbot thought the car would turn turtle, but Gerry's expert hands fought the wheel and conquered it. A running man threw himself headlong out of the way just as the front bumper flicked his body. By the slightest twist of the wheel Gerry could have run him down. Instead, he turned the reeling car toward another who had stopped to fire.

When Seconds Count.

The sharp tac-tac-tac of a machine gun ripped through the noises of the night. But there was no time to see who was shooting. A man had leaped to the running board and was leveling an automatic straight at Talbot's face. Gerry shook the steering wheel. The car wobbled drunkenly but the man clung on. Instantly Talbot's hand dropped to the door handle, twisted it and threw his weight against the panel. It swung wide and flipped the man from the running board. The rear wheel missed him by scant fractions of an inch.

The Hispano-Suiza was dashing at and among the scattering gunmen like a rogue elephant running amuck, its single bright eye gleaming malignantly as it swivelled here and there in response to Gerry's jerking hands on the wheel. Its two passengers could hear the snarling drone of Dave's airplane, but, for the moment, they had their own battle to fight. Their only hope lay in a swift, unceasing offensive.

"Look, Gerry!" shouted Talbot, pointing straight along the single beam of the headlight.

There, emerging from the tunnel-like road in the jungle, was an ancient Ford, bumping and reeling as it forged slowly ahead over the rough ground. And emblazoned in the white glare from Gerry's headlight were two girls and a jet-black negress. Despite the maelstrom of noise, shots and confusion, the little car headed straight across the field, its rusty radiator pointed at the idling airplane before the open hangar door.

The Hispano-Suiza slewed around at full speed, racing toward the shabby little car which was already the target for half-a-dozen guns. Twenty yards away was a man who slowly, carefully, raised a double-barrelled shotgun and aimed it at the Ford. The thundering sport car cut him down in his tracks.

The Ford came to a shuddering stop. From the other side of the field came the humming of the machine gun and the howl of the airplane's engine. The girls sat still in their car, not knowing what to do.

"Ah, the fools!" gasped Talbot, "the brave little fools!"

A Big Chance.

He saw Gerry's car burst out into the open clearing and dash headlong at the line of running men, who scattered, wheeled and blazed at it. He groaned involuntarily. If he could but nose down now and dive into that mess he could stop those men from shooting at Gerry and Talbot.

But there, straight ahead, was Joan, still on the box seat of the truck. The man, whose arm held her where she was, waved toward the idling amphibian at the hangar door. Dave saw a man leap into the boat-shaped cockpit of the waiting ship. The slowly revolving propeller churned over with ever-increasing speed. The heavy plane lumbered ahead to meet the truck.

Dave, in a frenzy of impatience, pushed against the stick, nosing his monoplane down into a head-long dive. The altimeter showed 180 miles an hour. Wind howled through wire and struts. The roar of the engine rose to an ear-splitting whine. But still the ship seemed to be dragging along as if somehow anchored to the sky.

The man who was holding Joan looked back over his shoulder. He saw Dave's diving plane and rolled backward from his seat, landing on all fours on the bouncing platform behind the driver. He reached swiftly into the deep shadow beneath the seat. Then he stood erect and swung an odd-shaped, lumpy rifle to his shoulder.

Joan rose to her feet, twisted away from the driver's lurching

grasp and threw herself to the ground. She fell and rolled over and over. The truck came to a sudden stop.

The odd-shaped rifle in the man's arms began to blink redly at the diving airplane. A neat pattern of black spots appeared in the wing, a dozen inches from Dave's head, as the sub-calibre machine gun spat out its dotted line of singing lead. And behind the blazing muzzle of the gun was Mueller's contorted face, fully visible in the glare of Gerry's headlight. The gang leader stood his ground while the plane roared down at him, holding his finger tight on the trigger, spraying lead from his vibrating weapon like water from a garden hose.

The Score Evened.

Dave, staring grimly ahead, heard the bullets crack past, heard, too, the snapping impact of lead against wood and fabric. He was sharply conscious of that swarthy face behind the gun and of the need of reaching it before those bullets probed their way through and through his own body. He adjusted his control stick and pedals with meticulous care. He must not miss. A little higher, now. Not too much. Back, hard! The plane, whose tires had almost touched the ground, leaped high into the air. The right wheel swung up across the truck like a titanic pendulum. It seemed only to graze Mueller's tense body in passing, but the man was swept away in a long parabola, turning over and over in the air before he crashed to the ground. He rolled for several feet, as limp as a rag doll thrown away by a petulant child. Then he lay very still.

At the top of his zoom Dave looked over the splintered edge of his cockpit. Gerry's car was dashing back and forth on the other end of the field as if a crazy man were at its wheel. It was a swift sleek car of Juggernaut. He saw it cut down one man and turn after a second.

"Tetany" Is a Disease of the Ductless Glands

The Lay Public Often Confuses This Ailment with Tetanus, Says Dr. Copeland, Explaining the Difference and Suggesting Treatment

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

RECENTLY I discussed a disease spoken of as "Tetanus." Because of the similarity in names, it is often confused by the lay public with tetanus or lock-jaw.

Tetany differs from tetanus, in that it is not a disease resulting from an infection. It is due to a failure in the proper absorption of lime by the body. This chemical breakdown is due, undoubtedly, to a disturbance in the operation of one of those mysterious ductless glands. In this case it is the "parathyroid gland."

The parathyroid glands are tiny masses of tissue found in close contact with the thyroid gland. The latter is associated with the "Adam's apple" in the front of the neck.

The chief signs of the disease are spasms in the muscles, trembling and convulsive-like symptoms affecting mainly the hands and feet. It may follow typhoid fever, severe diarrhoea, exposure to cold or rickets.

If the parathyroid glands are removed from a living body this condition will result. It can be produced by any poison that interferes with the human chemistry.

The disease is most frequently seen in children, chiefly those who have rickets. It is most to be expected in severe digestive disorders in bottle-fed infants.

Sometimes there is a spasm of the muscles, especially of the arms. This spasm causes the arm to become bent across the chest. The legs become extended, with bending upward of the toes. The muscles of the face are rarely affected. If they are, there is trembling and tremors of the face and a change in the facial expression.

The disease is not a fatal one and recovery takes place within a short period. It is essential to remove the cause. In children the whole problem is usually a question of diet. When that is corrected recovery is prompt.

Baths and cold sponging often relieve the muscular spasms. But it is better that no treatment should be attempted until it is directed by a physician. At times these cases are stubborn and require careful prescribing.

Answers to Health Queries

MISS E. B. Q.—What do you do for a red nose? I am only 22 years of age and troubled in this way, especially upon arising in the mornings?

A.—This is usually indicative of an intestinal condition. Watch your diet, avoiding rich foods, and be sure to keep the system clear. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat question.

MRS. A. B. Q.—What will reduce an enlarged abdomen?

A.—Careful attention to the diet

and plenty of exercise should bring about general results. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

MRS. F. H. M. Q.—What would cause a bitter taste in the mouth? My teeth are in good condition and my tonsils have been removed.

A.—This may be caused by some gastro-intestinal disorder. Watch your diet and be sure that the system is clear. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

TRICKS of MAGIC

EXPLAINED by Will L. Lindhorst

USE SODA BOTTLE AND DIME TO PRODUCE MYSTIC TRICK

PLACE DIME ON TOP

HOLD BOTTLE FIRMLY

LITTLE WATER IN BOTTOM

Four a little water into a small soda bottle and place a dime on top of the bottle. With your hand on the dime tip the bottle so that the water inside will form a bubble under the dime. Then grasp the bottle with both hands, holding it firmly and the dime on top will begin to move. In covering the bottle with the hands heat is produced inside and this mixing with the water forms a combustion. In seeking an outlet this combustion causes the dime to move on top of the bottle much in the manner that steam inside a kettle will cause the lid to rattle.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Foibles of Hollywood and Agua Caliente, oil millionaires who try to become picture producers, gold diggers and jealous wives—all join in a merry melange in "Stepping Out," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's filmization of Elmer Harris' hilarious New York stage play. The new picture will come to the Cliftona Theatre Sunday.

The prominent cast includes Charlotte Greenwood, of "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," Lella Hyams, who scored in "Men Call It Love," and other hits, Reginald Denny, last seen in "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," Lillian Bond, English stage star, playing the same role in the picture which she did on the stage, Cliff Edwards, Merna Kennedy, Harry Stubbs, Richard Tucker, Kane Richmond and Wilson Henge.

AT THE GRAND

Drama or revue—which holds the greater opportunity for the young and talented actress? This was the question which confronted Claire Luce, who plays the feminine lead in "Up The River," Fox Movietone comedy, opening Sunday at the Grand theatre.

Florenz Ziegfeld said, musical comedy, Arthur Hopkins told her drama. She decided that Hopkins was right, despite the fact that she had been a Broadway sensation as premiere danseuse of the Folies, and signed his contract. The keenness of her judgment was soon proved by her triumph in the London production of "Burlesque."

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE

COLUMBUS, O., June 27.—Statistics compiled under supervision of Secretary of State, Clarence J. Brown, indicate that Ohio is fifth among the states in banking resources. New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Illinois are the only states having greater banking assets. In the last three years the total number of banks in Ohio has decreased from 707 in 1928, to 661 in 1930. In the same three-year period the average assets of state and private banks has increased from $3,339,308 in 1928, to $3,448,992 in 1929, and to $3,541,240, in 1930 per institution. This means that the average Ohio bank has $200,000 more in resources now than in 1928.

Work on the new state office building has been resumed after a walkout by members of the carpenters' union, who claimed the right to set the windows in the building, which was being done by members of the ironworkers' union. Work on the building has been pushed rapidly ever since construction started and the contractors anticipate completing it and turning it over to the state early next year. Its twelve stories are expected to house all departments of state with the exception of the administrative offices which will be continued in the Capitol.

When the new parole board assumes office in September, the members will have their hands full for some time as 1,600 inmates of the Ohio penitentiary are eligible for parole and each will be given a hearing. There are now approximately 4,650 men housed at the institution, nearly all of whom are employed in the various shops housed in the new industrial building lately completed and claimed to be entirely fire-proof.

The published lists of the entries in the early closing events of the Ohio State Fair to be held August 31 to September 5, indicate that some of the best speed kings in the country will contest on the state track. There are seven stakes with purses of $1,200 to $2,000. In the 2:20 trot there are 57 entries; 21 in the 3:13 pace, 54 in the two-year old trot; 40 in the two-year old pace; 53 in the 2:20 pace, 35 in the three-year old pace and 53 in the three-year old trot. That means excellent sport for patrons of the fair.

In 1908, twenty-three years ago, there were 10,649 motor vehicles in Ohio. This year nearly two million were registered, bringing in approximately $13,500,000 in fees to the state. At the end of the first ten years of registration, there were 442,020 motor vehicles and at the end of the next ten, in 1928, there were 1,711,215. The average fee for passenger cars last year was $4.56 for commercial cars $25.61 and for trailers, $9.05.

The cigarette tax has passed the present General Assembly and smokers will be compelled to pay an additional two cents per package of 20. The fate of the bill was in doubt in the House until Governor White threw his force behind it. The Governor has promised to sign it and the tax will be come effective September first of this year and remain in force until December 31, 1933, producing a predicted revenue of $11,600,000.

COLUMBUS COUPLE MARRIED HERE

Dr. Franklin McElfresh performed the ceremony which united in marriage Miss Edith Miller and Mr. Russell B. Hendon, both of Columbus. The marriage took place Saturday morning at the M. E. parsonage.

ENTERTAIN NEW BRIDGE CLUB

A new bridge club of three tables was assembled, Friday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Gleadell, of W. Franklin-st.

After five rounds of play score prizes were awarded D. E. McBride, Robert Martin, Mrs. Earl Price and Mrs. D. E. McBride.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Martin of Bevel were guests of the club. Dainty refreshments were served after the game.

Members of the new club include Mr. and Mrs. Homer Gleadell, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Gell, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. McBride, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Coate, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Price and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Taylor.

Garden Party's Gowns As Gay As Garden Flowers

PARIS. — Garden-party gowns are as gay as the flowers that bloom in the gardens themselves. They come in all the lovely sheer mousselines and chiffons, crepe georgettes and double and triple crepes.

One of the dressmakers uses white crepe mousseline encrusted with brown lace for a charming garden-party dress. Below the clinging corsage, a fitted tunic is bordered with delicate lace insets which match two lower flounces. He also applies black lace in loose raised-flower designs on a large-flowered pale gray chiffon, in which a tracery of black supplies the leaves and stems.

Rich blue, with coral incrustations and brown on a canary ground have been seen at several June parties in the capital. A heavy crepe comes brocaded with black motifs on bright and light ground.

Jenny is using her special "Jenny blue" for garden-party gowns. It is somewhere between turquoise and Italian-blue, with a slightly richer tint than for afternoon wear. She is also using her exclusive material with a black ground on which are scattered posies in pink, blue, buff or green, or very often all of them mingled together.

Garden-party gowns are made up in quaint line suggesting mid-Victorian. Sometimes a tiny capelet does the business of a sleeve, the fitted waist bound by a tiny girdle and the skirt tight at the hips, shaped to flow out at the lower edge.

An interesting novelty for a garden-party gown comes in a revival of silk cashmere weave, offered with tiny motifs half raconne and half-printed. It is inspired by silks of fifty years ago.

Any member of the family of Mrs. Chas. Fricke, 203 W. Main-st., is invited to be a guest of The Herald to the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

RUTH JENKINS, BRIDE OF DAVID SPEAKMAN

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Ruth Lucille Jenkins, daughter of Mrs. Ora B. Jenkins, of Fifteenth-ave., Columbus, and Mr. David O. Speakman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Speakman, of Harrison-twp., Wednesday, at 8:30 a. m., at the home of the bride's mother. Rev. Robert Tucker, pastor of Indianapolis Methodist Episcopal church, officiated at the ceremony.

"Beloved It is Born," "To a Wild Rose" and "Oh Promise Me," were sung by Mrs. Edith Perkins Conkright at the ceremony. The service took place before the fireplace in the living room which was decorated with large vases of garden flowers, palms, ferns and two seven-branched candelabra.

Wearing a sleeveless frock of white chiffon, fashioned with a fitted bodice and floor-length skirt, the bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. E. L. Jenkins, of Columbus. She wore a white hat, off-the-face style, trimmed with white velvet ribbon and slippers of white moire. Miss Jenkins carried a shower bouquet of butterfly roses, swansonia and for-get-me-nots. The bride also wore a strand of pearls.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Theodore F. Kientz was attired in a blue chiffon dress, made ankle-length, with a fitted bodice and blue lace jacket with elbow length sleeves. Her hat and slippers were of blue, and she wore a strand of pink beads, a gift from the bride.

As maid of honor, Miss Luella Kuhn of Shelby wore a pink chiffon gown of floor-length, with fitted bodice and bertha collar and hat and slippers to match. The blue beads she wore were presented her by the bride. Bouquets formed of yellow roses, pink sweet peas and blue delphinium were carried by the bride's attendants. Mrs. Theodore F. Kientz served as best man for Mr. Speakman.

A reception was held at the Jenkins residence following the ceremony after which Mr. Speakman and his bride left for a motoring trip. They will be at home to their friends at 232 College Court, in Kent, upon their return.

For her going-away outfit, Mrs. Speakman wore a brown and white georgette ensemble, with brown and white slippers, brown hat and white gloves. Her purse was also of white and she wore a corsage of yellow roses combined with sweet peas and gypsophila.

Mrs. Speakman, who for the past three years has been an instructor in the schools at Newton Falls, is a former student of Ohio State university, and is a graduate of Kent Normal school. The bridegroom is identified with the Davey Tree Expert Co., in Kent.

HILLIG PLANS TO FLY TO GERMANY

COPENHAGEN, June 27.—Otto Hillig, the Liberty, N. Y., trans-Atlantic flyer, was preparing today to leave for a flight to Germany, following the festivities in his and his pilot's honor. Hillig left Germany as an immigrant to go to America forty years ago.

The two flyers, who arrived at the Kastrup airport here from Bremen yesterday at the end of their long flight across the north Atlantic from Harbor Grace, N. F., are the toast of all Denmark today.

When it was reported that the monoplane Liberty was nearing Copenhagen four Danish military planes went out to meet it, they escorted the Liberty back to Copenhagen.

JURY DELIBERATES

ARDMORE, Okla., June 27.—A jury was deliberating today on the murder charges against William Guess, former deputy sheriff, who shot and killed Emilio Rubio, 23, nephew of the president of Mexico, here June 7.

The jury received the case at 7:30 last night after arguments lasting all day. After three hours of deliberation it had reached no verdict, and retired for the night. They reported to Judge Ogden at 9 o'clock this morning.

CAMP KNOX READY FOR MANY CAMPERS

CAMP KNOX, Ky.—This quiet camp in the green hills of Kentucky soon will buzz with activity incident to the summer training of more than 10,000 men. Scenes will be reminiscent of World War activities at cantonments and on artillery and rifle ranges.

The facilities of a reconstructed and rehabilitated Camp Knox, hastily built in war time but thoroughly repaired and improved during the past three years—will be at the disposal of the summer population. These thousands of part-time soldiers will be trained under the direction of regular army officers and troops and members of the Reserve Corps.

Reserve Officers Training Corps units already are in camp. These are college men from schools in Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia and Tennessee. More than 500 of them are in camp now, living the lives of soldiers. The infantry contingent is at present encamped at Muldraugh Rifle Range, living in pyramidal tents and eating from field kitchens on large tables set up in the open. They are firing daily on the rifle range with regulation 30 calibre Springfield rifles.

The artillery units of the college soldiery are doing firing drill and battery drill mounted. All are performing the routine duties of soldiers in training.

In July there will be a rapid growth in camp population when 1,500 young men arrive for a month's training as members of the Citizens Military Training Camp. Those citizen soldiers will be examined physically, clothed, equipped, sheltered, fed and trained in the school of the soldier.

The largest increase in camp population will come with the arrival in camp of 6,500 National Guardsmen in August. Comprising all the various branches of the service that make up a division, these units will arrive from Indiana and Kentucky cities for a four weeks training period.

PASTOR JAILED

CHICAGO, June 27.—Rev. Philip Yarrow, noted vice crusader and reformer, was in county jail today for failing to pay a $5,000 judgment obtained against him by Walter Shaver, a book dealer.

Shaver, now bankrupt, was arrested upon charges by Yarrow, superintendent of the Illinois Vigilance association, of selling one of his agents an obscene book. Shaver was acquitted and then sued Yarrow for malicious prosecution, seeking $25,000 damages. He was awarded $5,000 last March 27. Yarrow has not paid nor appealed.

ART LESSONS

Edgar Blain, assistant superintendent of schools in Medina-co., will give the first of a number of lessons in art at the home of J. W. Fetherlin, 113 W. High-st., on Thursday, July 1.

Mr. Blain has several pupils signed up to take the lessons which he will give every Thursday at Mr. Fetherlin's home.

Ohio Democrats Approve Hoover Economic Plan

COLUMBUS, O.—Putting aside partisanship, Democrats in the capital and elsewhere in Ohio, indicated by their approval of the principle of the Hoover debt holiday proposal that they are just as eager as Republicans to support any action looking toward economic rehabilitation. No obstacle would be placed by them as political opponents in the way of realization of President Herbert Hoover's purpose, they asserted.

Applying the economic objective, hoping that it may bring relief to sorely tried peoples at home and abroad, they did not begrudge the opposition the potential political benefits.

And making no attempt to detract from the merits of the idea by suggesting political expediency as one of the motives that inspired it, they recognized that the proposal marked the formal opening of the administration's campaign for re-election.

They noted that it followed immediately the President's return from speaking engagements in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois which informally launched the Hoover campaign. They pointed out that it served effectively to keep him in the spotlight in which the trip had thrust him.

And many a Republican, dismayed by tragic events of the Hoover era, enheartened by this new "break," was ingenious enough to admit that, besides being an altruistic gesture of good will toward foreign nations and an instrument for alleviating world conditions, proposal was excellent political strategy.

Though Mr. Hoover, emerging from the inaction of many months, shrewdly had arrested attention, made a bid to retrieve popular favor, Jeffersonian disciples were not perturbed. They confidently prophesied that Ohio and many another state would not forget the Hoover tariff as one of the major causes of the depression, would rebuke the administration at the polls.

Democrats, whose condemnation of the inequities of the Hoover tariff is shared by countless Republican workers and manufacturers in Ohio, welcomed the obvious fact that new emphasis will be laid upon the tariff as a campaign issue in the light of its contribution to the disaster that now alarms the president. In his Indianapolis speech he had defended it vigorously, manifested his intention to stand steadfast against its critics.

Yet newspaper commentators discussing his debt program stressed the idea that he cannot divorce the tariff and depression, that the tariff has done more mischief than any other factor in the business crisis. Typical of such editorial views were those of the Scripps-Howard newspapers which said: "Tariffs must be reduced. This is the judgment of the ablest statesmen. This is the judgment of virtually all economists and international experts. This is the judgment of bankers and business leaders here and abroad. The chief reason Germany today is near bankruptcy, and thus near revolution and war, is the world tariff wall. We are largely responsible for that world tariff wall. Our part of that wall is the highest and ours in turn has forced others to build higher. We hope Congress will initiate the reduction in world tariffs upon which peace and prosperity wait. Intergovernmental debts and reparations cannot be dealt with alone. As a cause of this world crisis they are secondary to the tariff conflicts and the preparations for war."

Urging nonpartisan consideration of the economic aspects of the moratorium proposal, The Cleveland Plain Dealer analyzes the political aspects saying the "suggestion of a year's forgetfulness of debts touches a sympathetic chord with political friend and foe alike."

And it points out: "A heart-rending depression, setting in before the president had been a year in office, throws a shadow of uncertainty over his future. The tariff act, which Mr. Hoover signed reluctantly, has justified the dire predictions of its opponents. The frightfully tragic story of the Farm Board and its failures in a political liability for the administration.

"As a result of all these and other circumstances, equally well known, Democratic hopes for 1932 have soared high, and Republican chances fallen below par.

"And now comes the moratorium plan, and practically the world sings of the wisdom and humanity of the man who proposes it."

There is nothing harder than the crucifixion of the will.

The artillery units of the college soldiery are doing firing drill and battery drill mounted. All are performing the routine duties of soldiers in training.

In July there will be a rapid growth in camp population when 1,500 young men arrive for a month's training as members of the Citizens Military Training Camp. Those citizen soldiers will be examined physically, clothed, equipped, sheltered, fed and trained in the school of the soldier.

The largest increase in camp population will come with the arrival in camp of 6,500 National Guardsmen in August. Comprising all the various branches of the service that make up a division, these units will arrive from Indiana and Kentucky cities for a four weeks training period.

PASTOR JAILED

CHICAGO, June 27.—Rev. Philip Yarrow, noted vice crusader and reformer was in county jail today for failing to pay a $5,000 judgment obtained against him by Walter Shaver, a book dealer.

Shaver, now bankrupt, was arrested upon charges by Yarrow, superintendent of the Illinois Vigilance association, of selling one of his agents an obscene book. Shaver was acquitted and then sued Yarrow for malicious prosecution, seeking $25,000 damages. He was awarded $5,000 last March 27. Yarrow has not paid nor appealed.

ART LESSONS

Edgar Blain, assistant superintendent of schools in Medina-co, will give the first of a number of lessons in art at the home of J. W. Fetherlin, 118 W. High-st., on Thursday, July 1.

Mr. Blain has several pupils signed up to take the lessons which he will give every Thursday at Mr. Fetherlin's home.

Ohio Democrats Approve Hoover Economic Plan

COLUMBUS, O.—Putting aside partisanship, Democrats in the capital and elsewhere in Ohio, indicated by their approval of the principle of the Hoover debt holding proposal that they are just as eager as Republicans to support any action looking toward economic rehabilitation. No obstacle would be placed by them as political opponents in the way of realization of President Herbert Hoover's purpose, they asserted.

Applauding the economic objective, hoping that it may bring relief to sorely tried peoples at home and abroad, they did not begrudge the opposition the potential political benefits.

And making no attempt to detract from the merits of the idea by suggesting political expediency as one of the motives that inspired it, they recognized that the proposal marked the formal opening of the administration's campaign for re-election.

They noted that it followed immediately the President's return from speaking engagements in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois which informally launched the Hoover campaign. They pointed out that it served effectively to keep him in the spotlight in which the trip had thrust him.

And many a Republican, dismayed by tragic events of the Hoover era, enheartened by this new "break", was ingenious enough to admit that, besides being an altruistic gesture of good will toward foreign nations and an instrument for alleviating world conditions, proposal was excellent political strategy.

Though Mr. Hoover, emerging from the inaction of many months, shrewdly had arrested attention, made a bid to retrieve popular favor, Jeffersonian disciples were not perturbed. They confidently prophesied that Ohio and many another state would not forget the Hoover tariff as one of the major causes of the depression, would rebuke the administration at the polls.

Democrats, whose condemnation of the iniquities of the Hoover tariff is shared by countless Republican workers and manufacturers in Ohio, welcomed the obvious fact that new emphasis will be laid upon the tariff as a campaign issue in the light of its contribution to the disaster that now alarms the president. In his Indianapolis speech he had defended it vigor-

RADIO NO DIVORCE BASIS
CLEVELAND.—Disputes over the family radio do not furnish sufficient grounds for a divorce, Common Pleas Judge Samuel H. Silbert ruled in denying a decree to Mrs. Dolores Kuester here. The plaintiff complains that her husband had refused to grant her request to turn off the radio.

THEIR WIVES WERE AWAY—SO THEY STEPPED OUT HIGH AND HANDSOME!

BUT when their better halves found out they were God's gifts to a couple of gold-digging cuties—well, see it and be ready for the time of your life!

Last Time Tonight "Gentlemen's Fate"

LADIES FROM MISSOURI

FOUND in the back of any old cook-book, in the "Useful Compendium of Household Hints."

"To test muslin for 'filling'—rub a small section vigorously between the forefinger, and note any starchy substance that breaks out of the fibers.

"To test for color-fastness—before buying wash goods of any kind it is safest to obtain small samples of all patterns and soak in clear water.

"To detect cotton in an "all-wool" fabric — pull the threads apart and apply a lighted match," etc., etc.

How funny they were—these old suspicious-of-every thing shopping tests! Grandmother knew them all byheart and descended on Mr. Biggs, the linen draper, with defiance in her eye. Her little, moistened forefinger shot suspiciously under every proffered length of sheeting or dish-toweling. She took nobody's word for anything!

But how differently you approach a yard-goods purchase in any store today. A name on the selvage . . . a label on the end of the bolt . . . a guarantee-tag that also suggests a method of washing. These are your safety-signals in buying. To the question "Will it wash?" Is this pure wool?" or "pure silk?" the saleswoman has only to remind you of the trade name of the fabric. When she mentions a name familiar to you through advertising, your doubts are dispelled.

Yes . . . we still look before we leap, but today that means READ BEFORE YOU SHOP!
